Nose Pink, Record Broken Peaceful Fishing Another Canal Needed Einstein, the Deep

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features, Synd., Inc.

FOR 13 HOURS and 16 minutes, Elinor Smith, 17-year-old girl flier, stayed up in the freezing winds above Long Island in an open airplane. When she came down her nose was bright pink and her legs were stiff, her hands were almost frozen, but she had broken the women's endurance record by one hour.

Flying interests women; it is one of the things that they can do better than men.

The most important thing men can't do at all, namely, producing and taking care of children. And that is what should interest women.

It is better to create an Abraham Lincoln than to be Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Hoover is fishing, calm and peaceful, having written his inaugural address and selected his Cabinet. The country won't know who is in the Cabinet until March 4.

A thousand or more candidates may be sure that if they have not heard from Mr. Hoover yet, they will not hear from him. The fact that Secretary Mellon REMAINS in the Cabinet will please everybody, something that happens rarely.

The Panama Canal set a new high record for business in January, 593 ships passing in 30 days.

The country needs another canal, and a Nicaragua canal should be built at sea level to take care of growing ocean-to-ocean traffic.

The Nicaragua canal would provide this country with a canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific without the locks, so easily destroyed.

The Navy, which played at war the other day, attacking and defending the Panama Canal, admits that the attackers, theoretically, "destroyed the canal." They say that if the Navy had more fast cruisers the defense could have been successful.

On the other hand, if an enemy came with a few high-powered bombing machines without any cruisers or any ships on the water, the canal could be destroyed, and floating ships would mean nothing.

This country has bought from Nicaragua the right to build a canal, and the canal should be built, without loss of time. That will be one of Herbert Hoover's jobs.

Professor Einstein's theories puzzle able mathematicians, as they well may.

He tells you, if his deep German is correctly interpreted, that gravitation and electricity are the same force.

The fourth dimension is time, said geometry and electricity are in some way related.

It must all be true, since a great scientist says so, at least until a greater scientist comes along and says it is nonsense.

But how geometry, expressing finite man's ideas of form and measurement, can possibly be connected with a cosmic force like electricity is not easily understood by little people.

As for the fourth dimension being "time," that is even more puzzling. "Time is only a succession of events," It is man's word to express the fact that they are born, and after a while die. If that man-made word "time" is the fourth dimension, what is the fifth?

Speeches in Congress are unfortunately not read by more than one-tenth of the citizens.

Everyone should read Mr Reed of Missouri's speech demanding fast cruisers and preparation.

Senator Reed says truly that other countries, notoriously, have prepared in rather complete fashion plans for attacking the United States, in case they should decide to do so. He reminds the Senate that not a single American-made fighting airplane crossed a German trench, although at the last minute, and in a panic, the country spent nearly a billion dollars making flying machines that never flew, and another billion making floating ships that we now cannot even give away.

On Monday Colonel Lindbergh will pilot the first airmail plane from Miami to Panama, going to the canal as casually as you would travel by rail from Chicago to Milwaukee, and JUST AS SAFELY. New York will have flying service to and from Coney Island every 15 minutes, fare $4.

Air traffic will grow. Those that establish paying lines will prosper.

Dr. Barnes, who said, "Men need a new concept of God," says now that he is satisfied with "the Hebrew concept of God."

Perhaps the professor is satisfied because Jehovah is described less minutely than some other contenders.

Seek to Pin Revere Death on One of 3 Suspects

RAID RICH HOME, NAB 1 AS HUB WIFE DESERTER

New York, Feb. 1 (INS)—Nassau County police raided a costly Kensington home today, brushing aside a maid and a butler in the attempted arrest of two brothers on warrants.

Only one of the brothers, William J. Welch, was found at home. The other, Ned Welch, had left the house half an hour before police arrived. He is being sought on a warrant charging him with passing a bad check on a Great Neck merchant.

William Welch was taken to the Nassau County jail on a warrant charging him with abandoning his wife and five children in Boston.

BELIEVE SUSPECT IS KILLER

Three suspects in the murder of Anthony Champs, North End gangster, one of them newly arrested today at his home in Revere, were placed in a lineup at police headquarters in an attempt at identification.

It had been announced earlier today that one of the suspects probably would be charged formally with the murder of Champs before the day was out.

Viewing the suspects in the lineup were John J. Connell, the elderly caretaker of Derby farm in Revere where Chiampa was murdered; an unnamed man who was present in the North End pool-room last Monday at 7:55 p. m. when Champs received the telephone call that sent him to his death, and a youth who told authorities he was in the dice game

New Values for Telephone Users

New values for telephone users feature our revised toll rate schedule, effective today.

From 7:00 to 8:30 P. M. a new evening rate period is introduced. Toll calls made by number during this period (with a minimum rate of 35 cents) are charged at approximately three-quarters the day rate for number calls. There is no evening rate where the day rate is 35 cents or less.

From 8:30 P. M. to 4:30 A. M. the night rate for calls made by number (with a minimum rate of 25 cents) is approximately one-half the day rate for number calls. Where this day rate is 25 cents or less there is no night rate.

Where the rate for calls by number is 25 cents or more, such calls may now be placed "collect" at no extra cost, if the charge is accepted at the telephone called.

Day rates for beyond 128 miles are reduced, the amount of the reduction increasing with the distance.

While savings on individual messages may not be large, in the aggregate they mean approximately $250,000 a year to our subscribers.

RICH WOMAN STRANGLED

BATTLED FOR LIFE IN TAVERN

Pauline Zimmerman, 41, divorcee and tavern keeper of Portland, Me., was found dead with a cord knotted around her throat.

Boston police were hunting today for a man whom officials of Portland, Me., want for questioning in connection with the murder of Pauline Zimmerman, 41, wealthy divorcee and tavernkeeper.

In the center of the mystery surrounding the slaying is a parrot, a witness of the crime and probably the first of its species to figure in a New England murder mystery.

In the belief that the pet bird heard the woman's scream as she battled for her life, in her tavern at Portland, and that the bird may

WIDOW AND 'RIVAL' GO TO GALLOWS TO PAY FOR KILLING OF HUSBAND

Franklin Courthouse, Ia., Feb. 1 (INS)—Ada Bonner Lebouef, who killed her husband because she loved another, was hanged here today.

The man she loved—T. E. Dreher, a middle-aged country doctor who brought her four children into the world—followed her to the little death room on the mezzanine floor of the parish prison.

And in this sinister cabinet chamber the clang of a falling steel door will twice toll the knell of a drab, small-town, hide-in-the-corner love affair.

It will also mark the end of the most bitterly contested fight for life in the criminal annals of the Southland. Mrs. Lebouef will be the first white woman to hang in a Southern State since reconstruction days.

And when the requirements of the law have thus been carried

HOPE ABANDONED FOR TRAWLER AND 20

New London, Ct., Feb. 1 (AP)—Hope that the missing trawler Seiner and her crew of 20 are still safe was practically abandoned today with the announcement by President John Graham of the Portland Trawling Co. that a damaged lifeboat from the missing craft was dragged up from the bottom in 180 feet of water about 125 miles east of Nantucket late yesterday. Simultaneously coast guard officials here announced that the extensive coast guard search which has been carried on for the Seiner during the week ended last night.

DR. HODGDON LEAVES ESTATE OF $500,000

Dr. Andrew H. Hodgdon, medical examiner of Norfolk County for 38 years, was worth nearly $500,000 when he died, according to an inventory filed today in Norfolk probate court at Dedham.

The Dedham physician possessed $472,315 in personal property and $9500 in real estate, the appraisers, Arthur J. Wellington, Rodney C. Larcom and Nathaniel L. Harris, stated in the inventory.

Two sons of the doctor, Waldo C. and Howard W. Hodgdon, are executors of the estate.

Dr. Hodgdon died last September at his Dedham home, following a brief illness. His entire estate was bequeathed to the widow, to be divided among the three sons on her death.

cut the State of Louisiana will have balanced an account, opened on the night of July 1, 1927, when at the couple's behest Jim Beedle, a trapper, emptied the contents of a shotgun into the person of James J. Lebouef, the unsuspecting husband.

BETRAYS LOVE SLAYERS

Jim Beedle was the trigger-man; he also was the "squealer." For his telling of this act and the crafty planning that brought it about, the woodsman earned the privilege of serving out his colorless life behind the stone wall of a Louisiana prison, instead of paying the supreme penalty, as do his co-conspirators today.

Snatched four times from the very brink of the death drop, the murderers yesterday surrendered themselves to their fate when federal appellate judges at New Orleans refused to interfere with the "due process of the law" and the sentence of a lower court. This was the last possible legal resort of defense attorneys.

Governor Huey P. Long, the only man who could save the doomed pair at this late hour, has definitely stated he will not intervene.

And today, between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock, the principals in the drama were doomed to drop into nothingness there to hang for 21 minutes in accordance with the law.

The day of reckoning found the slayers cringing feebly against the certainty of their doom. Low moans and hysterical whimperings emanated from their cells as a solution of sunlight filtered through the windows.

The pair slept fitfully during the night, jail attendants said.

SOB OUT FAREWELLS

No visitors were allowed to see either of the two today, except their spiritual advisers and officials. Yesterday they bade a final farewell to their children and kin who made arrangements for their bodies to be taken home to Morgan City.

Mrs. LeBouef has requested that her body be buried in the Morgan County Cemetery beside that of the husband for whose murder she was sentenced to the scaffold. Mrs. Dreher will be buried in North Louisiana at Clayton, the family burial ground.

This morning Mrs. LeBouef offered a prayer for the forgiveness of Governor Long for his refusal to spare her life.

Three of Mrs. Lebouef's children came to see their mother shortly before it was learned that her last legal hope had been denied. They were Herman, 14; Ernest, 19, and Liberty, 10. The woman's aged mother, Mrs. Louis Lebouef, also came.

Then Dr. Dreher's children came. They were Polly and Dorothy, two demure girls still in their teens, and Ted, a sturdy lad approaching manhood.

No outsiders were present at either of these family scenes, and just what transpired no outsider knows. Jail attendants retired as the two little groups sobbed their farewells.

Two Slayers Hanged in St. Louis Jail

St. Louis, Feb. 1 (AP)—Leonard R. Yeager, 31, and Thomas Lowry, 28, convicted of murder, were hanged simultaneously in the city jail early today.

Both men went to the gallows with outward calm and the double execution was carried out speedily.

Yeager shot and killed Conniours Schou, an elderly tailor, who was passing through a saloon at the time Yeager and a companion were holding up teh establishment.

Lowry shot and killed a motorcycle patrolman while the officer was attempting to arrest him for speeding.

Six Killed as Trains Crash in Kentucky

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 1 (AP)—Six members of two train crews were reported killed eight miles from here today when passenger train No. 146 on the Louisville-Henderson & St. Louis railroad rushed headon into a freight.

Six men killed were buried in the wreckage and only one body has been recovered.

Doctors and an ambulance were rushed to the scene from here. It was reported that no passengers were injured seriously, but the conductor of the passenger train was taken to a hospital in a serious condition. The cause of the crash was unknown.

Astor Attorney 50 Years Settles Case

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—A 79-year-old attorney, who has been associated with the Astor family since the 70's, today spread upon the records of the federal court here a statement denying the claims of the heirs of John Nicholas Emerick to share in the estate of the original John Jacob Astor.

Although the Emerick complaint recently was dismissed, Charles A. Peabody, Jr., the attorney, desired to have his testimony recorded for use in any future litigation. He is successor trustee of the estate of the founder of the Astor fortune.

With Scopa was his attorney, Max Glazer.

STRANGLER CLUE UP TO PARROT

retain words uttered in that struggle, including perhaps the name of the slayer, policemen were attentive to its cries. Their hope is that it may speak phrases which will give the cue to the investigators in their manhunt.

CORD AROUND NECK

Her body, a cord tied tightly twice around her neck, was found when a Portland patrolman, entering the Liverpool Tavern owned by her, became suspicious when the parrot remained silent. Its customary greeting had been a whistle of welcome for the policeman. This time it hung its head; it made no sound.

As a result of what followed, police all over New England were on the search today. The cash register in the tavern had apparently been robbed; the woman's gems were missing.

Revenge was seen by police as the principal motive; even jealousy might have figured, they said. But robbery, in their opinion, was an afterthought of the slayer.

A woodsman, reported to have been staying at the hotel for some time, was being sought. Other trails, however, were being studied; one linked, in the police mind, the murder with the fact that the woman, whose tavern was chiefly a lodging place for sailors, had furnished information which led to the arrest of two men in Boston, in connection with a murder aboard a schooner at Portland.

IN NEW JERSEY

In the hope of getting information of the woman's career, police have sought the aid of her divorced husband, Benjamin Buckwald, whom she sued in Portland, winning her decree on an infidelity charge. She resumed her maiden name, and by dint of thrift and industry, had amassed a fortune of at least $75,000, it is said.

Buckwald later married, and is living with his second wife in New Jersey, police announced.

There were signs of struggle in the room. The body, partly nude, was found stretched on a bed. Around the neck was wound twice a 10-foot length of coarse cord, which had been knotted to keep it secure.

The woman's face bore superficial bruises and cuts which to County Atty. Ralph M. Ingalls and the medical examiner indicated that life was extinct when she became conscious before being strangled.

REVENGE THEORY

The theory of revenge was considered, in view of the fact that solution of the murder of Henry Gustafson, aged watchman of the schooner Edward B. Winslow, which occurred aboard the vessel in this port last September 4, was aided by Mrs. Zimmerman. She gave the police the first "tip" on Robert Gustafson and Thorvald E. Grip, Scandinavian seamen, who were arrested in Boston a week later on descriptions furnished by her. They had stayed in her lodging place in the room adjoining that in which she met death. Both men admitted a hand in shooting Gustafson and now are serving life sentences in prison.

Rumors that Mrs. Zimmerman was engaged to be married to a Portland teacher are being traced. A safe in the restaurant of the tavern, when opened, disclosed $20,000 in notes and a small amount of cash. It had not been tampered with and a locksmith drilled it open.

The cash register in the tavern office had been rifled of its contents.

24 Women Have Paid Death Penalty in U.S.

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—Twenty-four women have been executed in the various states, since they were incorporated as such, prior to the Leboeuf case in Louisiana.

Eight women have been executed in New York, eight in Pennsylvania and eight in other states. Of these 24 eight were convicted, like Mrs. Ada LeBoeuf, of murdering their husbands.

The first recorded instance of execution of a woman is that of Mrs. Mary Houghtaling of Hudson, N. Y., who was hanged in 1817 for strangling her baby. Some time after the execution a neighbor confessed on her deathbed that she and not Mrs. Houghtaling was guilty of the murder.

MANY USED POISON.

The majority of women executed have used poison in committing the murders of which they were convicted, but there have been several instances where the victim was shot, as was Mrs. LeBoeuf's husband. A few of the women murderers have resorted to bludgeoning and strangling.

In almost every case in which a woman has been sentenced to die a bitter legal battle has been fought to save them, as it has been for Mrs. LeBoeuf. Such battles were waged particularly for Mrs. Ruth Snyder, who was executed a year ago for murdering her husband. The fight for Mrs. Snyder's life was not abandoned until she was strapped in Sing Sing's death chair.

LIKE SNYDER KILLING.

The case most nearly parallel to that of Mrs. LeBoeuf was the Snyder murder. Mrs. Snyder and her suitor, Henry Judd Gray, conspired to kill Mrs. Snyder's husband just as Mrs. LeBoeuf connived with Dr. Thomas Dreher to kill her husband.

Mrs. Snyder and Gray died in a double execution like that ordered for Mrs. LeBoeuf and Dreher, though the New York execution was an electrocution instead of a hanging.

KING GOES TO SEASIDE NEXT THURSDAY

London, Feb. 1—Queen Mary and the Princess Mary reported to King George today on the results of their inspection of the house at Bognor, in Sussex, where the King is to continue his convalescence. He is expected to start for Bognor on Thursday of next week.

From the palace came word that the Queen and Princess gave their full approval to changes made at Craigwell House in Bognor to receive His Majesty, and that the Queen had rented an additional house as a guest place during the King's sojourn in Sussex.

The King is to make the trip from the palace to Bognor by automobile. Naturally, Bognor is enthusiastic over the plans, which mean placing the town in the front place for some weeks.

HUNT MAN WHO FIRED AT PAPAL NUNCIO

London, Feb. 1—Mystery veils the motive for the attempt to assassinate Mgr. Frederico Tedeschini, the papal nuncio, while he was walking in the grounds of the royal palace in Madrid, according to telephone reports from Madrid today.

The assailant escaped after firing four shots, which went wild. It is believed that he mistook the priest for someone else.

The message did not say for whom it was believed the shots were intended, but it is recalled that in 1925, while King Alfonso and his Queen were visiting in Barcelona, a series of bombs were discovered in the vicinity of the royal party, at least one of which exploded. Their return to Madrid was delayed in consequence, and finally made without announcement.

The King at the time of the shooting was at Seville, but was reported as planning to return to the capital to receive the report of Premier Primo De Rivera on the recent revolt and the measures taken to restore peace.

Mgr. Tedeschini, who was appointed to the Spanish post in March, 1921, has been on extremely friendly terms with the royal family which might account for his presence within the grounds of the Spanish royal palace.

Spain already has rigid censorship because of the revolt which broke out at Ciudad Real two days ago but which had been reported crushed.

held up at gunpoint by Chiampa and two other gangsters.

It is believed that Chiampa's holding out of most of the proceeds of this dice game robbery—$2200—was one of the reasons for his being slain.

The youth present at the game told District Attorney Foley that he believed he could identify at least two of the holdup men.

Police today exonerated Joseph Scopa of the North End of any complicity in the murder.

Scopa, his girl friend with whom he declared he was visiting on the murder night, and a number of her woman relatives, all told the same story when questioned separately by different officers.

Not only is the murder itself being investigated by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley and his assisting police, but the operations of a gang recently formed in the Hub and believed responsible for many robberies and holdups are being delved into.

According to police, the gang plan is beginning to get a firm hold in bootlegging operations.

"We are not only now seeking those who murdered Anthony Chiampa," said the district attorney, "but we are just as anxious to find those behind the newly organized racketeering gang in operation here for the past six months.

"We intend to break up the operations of the gang and put behind bars any racketeers who have been here quietly organizing the gang.

"With the identification of those behind the newly-organized racketeering gang we are sure we will have those who ordered that the North End boy here be taken for a ride and shut up forever, before he could tell us what we wanted to know about certain unsolved crimes in and near Boston in the past six months."

Armed Elope Is Held in New York

New York, Feb. 1 (INS)—A West Homestead, Pa., youth took his girl and his dad's revolver, left a suicide note and came to New York to find adventure. Instead, he found a couple of detectives who couldn't see any romance in the situation. They took his girl away from him and put him in the lineup at police headquarters. He was held on a charge of violating the Sullivan law. Mary was sent to the Florence Crittenden Home.

BACKS HEARST IN NICARAGUA CANAL PLEA

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 1—Unqualified indorsement was given to the Hearst newspapers proposal that Congress immediately appropriate $100,000 to survey a canal route through Nicaragua in a resolution adopted by the newly organized American Chamber of Agriculture.

The text of the resolution survey of the Nicaragua canal follows:

"Whereas a movement again is being set afoot by William Randolph Hearst, the Atlanta Georgian and associated Hearst newspapers for the construction of a canal across Nicaragua and,

"Whereas, such a canal would be of inestimable benefit to the South and its vast agricultural industry both in sales of its products and in importation of nitrates from Chile and other materials necessary to farming, therefore

"Be it resolved that this meeting does hereby indorse the movement to construct this canal and urges Congress to immediately appropriate $100,000 to enable engineers of the United States army to make a survey of the route for such a canal and

"Be it further resolved that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the proper committees of the national Senate and House of Representatives for their consideration."

Officers of the Chamber are: Governor L. G. Hardman of Georgia and Governor Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia; vice-presidents: Former Governor Angus W. McLean, president; William C. Chase, Georgia, executive vice-president; Hoke Smith, Georgia, counsel; Dr. E. H. Scott, Georgia, secretary.

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, chairman, advisory board; A. W. Dunlap, Ohio; Dr. A. Barrues, Virginia; T. R. Preston, Tennessee and Col. Sam J. Tate, Georgia, vice-chairmen advisory board.

FAIR AND COLD TONIGHT, THEN WARMER

Beginning where January left off in its belated effort to uphold traditional New England wintry records, February dawned on Greater Boston with four inches of snow covering city and suburbs.

By that auspicious advent, the current month makes easier the task of reaching the half-century average snowfall of 12.8 inches within its span of 28 days, although the immediate chance of adding to the flaky blanket vanished with the departure early today of last night's storm.

The widespread area of sub-zero temperatures through Iowa and contiguous states, which attended the expiration of January, stretched its icy fingers today as far south as the gulf coast border and is predicted to chill this section within 24 hours.

The local weather man, however, confidently forecasts the escape of New England from the brunt of the blast and prophesies slowly rising temperatures hereabouts tomorrow, when the cold wave has passed off the South Atlantic coast.

THE TRIANGLE FORMED
Clandestine meetings between Mrs. Ada Bonner LeBoeuf and Dr. T. E. Dreher of St. Mary's parish, Louisianna, which had village gossip buzzing for two years, brought the eternal triangle into material form.

THEIR OBSTACLE REMOVED
Luring her husband out on the murky waters of Lake Palourde, last July, the pair then removed the obstacle to their love meetings, and slugs from a shotgun of James Beadle ended the life of Mrs. LeBoeuf's husband, James.

BODY IS FOUND
Fishermen, out on the lake, several days later, found the body floating on the water; the three were arrested and found guilty, and Beadle sentenced for life imprisonment.

NOOSE TIGHTENS
But Mrs. LeBoeuf and the doctor were sentenced to die, and now the noose ends their lives and one of Louisiana's most dramatic and thrilling murder cases.

But, although the body of LeBoeuf was slashed at the suggestion of the doctor, and then sunk with weights, it rose to the surface and pointed its accusing finger at the woman, her suitor, and the actual slayer, Beadle.

GIRL LANDS 2 IN COURT AFTER GEM 'PARTY'

As the result of a Revere party at which, it is alleged, unset diamonds and emeralds were used as cash in payment for drinks and a taxicab driver was given a $500 diamond ring to settle a $4.90 bill, two erstwhile "gentlemen friends" of Miss Edith Shaw of Union st., Lynn, were given jail sentences today on charges of larceny. Both appealed.

They are Patrick Wreck, 35, of Western ave., Lynn, and John Casey, 34, of Chicago and New York st., Lynn.

According to evidence, Wreck had bestowed his attentions on Miss Shaw for several months. Yesterday he took Casey to see her.

Wreck suggested a little "time" at Revere in celebration of Casey's arrival, and by taxi Miss Shaw and the two men voyaged forth, court was told.

Wreck and Casey had "forgotten" their wallets. Miss Shaw had her purse, so she paid. She also paid for a few drinks. Then, according to her testimony, her funds ran low. To the rescue came Wreck, it is alleged. He had in his pocket several valuable stones, originally intrusted to him by Miss Shaw, who had wanted them pawned, it was testified.

According to Miss Shaw, she woke up at home early today—minus her unset diamonds and emeralds, a $1500 ring and a $500 ring. Police said that Wreck had the unset stones. On Casey, police said, they found the $1500 ring.

The $500 ring turned up when a taxi cab driver appeared at police headquarters with it. He said it was given him by Casey for the $4.90 fare.

Judge Ralph W. Reeve sentenced Wreck to six months in the House of Correction and Casey to a year.

'Tallest' Air Mail Pilot Fights Through Storm

On one of the worst nights and mornings experienced on the local run by an air mail pilot, Lieut. Henry E. ("Hank") Tallman, Colonial Airport's pew "sailing sylph," who stands six feet three and a half inches barefooted, completed his round trip despite snow and freezing hail.

The giant pilot, driving a Fairchild monoplane, said he wasn't bothered by ice-covered windows in the cabin on the trip to New York because he couldn't see more than a few feet into the night, anyway.

On the trip back to Boston, with the ground invisible through the snow and his visibility not more than 500 feet, he found the ground in Norfolk, asked where he was, had Boston direction pointed out to him, took a compass bearing and hopped again, reaching the airport without further incident.

$20,000 HORSE LOST IN FIRE

Wichita, Kan., Feb. 1 (AP)—Thirty-three thoroughbred horses were burned to death here early today when fire destroyed the stables of the Wichita Saddle and Bridle Club. Among the horses lost was Lila Lee, a $20,000 filly.

Club officials said the total loss would be several hundred thousand dollars. The origin of the blaze was undetermined. Stable boys made desperate efforts to save some of the horses by cutting them loose from their tethers, but the animals refused to lave the burning building.

Prince Ola Is Going Tell 'Em With Rifle Shots

Paris, Feb. 1 (INS)—Prince Ola, aged 18, the eldest son of former King Amanullah, of Afghanistan, departed today for Moscow upon his father's orders, abandoning his studies in Paris.

"I am ready to pick up a rifle and help my father restore order in Afghanistan," said Prince Ola. "If anything happens to him, I am prepared to fight for the crown and to bend my father's troops.

"Should my father decide to abdicate in my favor, I plan to rally the loyal troops and lead a march upon Kabul. My policies may be more modern than those of Amanullah, due to my foreign education."

CRASH HALTS HONEYMOON

Worcester, Feb. 1—The honeymoon trip of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Desaulniers of Waterbury, Ct., married yesterday, came to a sudden halt early today when their automobile crashed into a tree at West Brookfield.

Bride and groom were thrown from the machine, receiving serious injuries about their heads. Charles Price, 18-year-old brother of the bride, received minor injuries.

A bus driver found the trio lying in the snow and took them to St. Vincent's Hospital, Worcester.

WATCH WOMAN'S HOME IN HUNT FOR CULLEN

Watch was set on the mail and on the home of a woman today in the hunt for Christopher Cullen of East Weymouth, alleged slayer of his bride of five days, Cora Jacques Cullen.

This woman was friendly with Cullen and had a noticeable influence over him, police declare, and they believe he would be more likely to write to her than to anyone else if he became desperately lonely and miserable on his flight.

The story of Agnes Flynn of Hingham, friend of Cora Jacques and the one who introduced Cora and "Chris" Cullen, led to this action.

Miss Flynn, a waitress at the Cushing House, where Cora Jacques also formerly worked, confirmed vague reports regarding Cullen's affairs, the authorities said, including the story of a rift between Cullen and Miss Jacques before their marriage.

"Cora came to me frequently and told me about a woman who was receiving lots of attention from Chris Cullen," she said.

"There was one time when Cora was ill and Cullen was going to take her to her home in Lowell, but he did not show up. Cora telephoned and learned that he was visiting this other woman, for she turned to me and said: 'He's with that married woman again.'

POLE SAVES 3 FROM DEATH IN RIVER

An electric pole on Prison Point bridge, Charlestown, into which their machine crashed early today, probably saved the lives of a student of Harvard and a girl occupant.

Instead of plunging over the railing and into the river, the car was wrecked against the pole, the three occupants injured, and the pole burst into flames as a result of a tangling up of overhead wires.

The girl, Miss Caroline Schoenfeld, 21, of University apartments, Baltimore, and giving a local address of 9 Concord ave., Cambridge, owner of the car, lost two teeth and suffered contusions about the lower lip and injuries to her right hip. John A. Terhune, 5 Concord ave., Cambridge, a naval officer, taking a post-graduate course at Harvard, was cut about the face, and the other occupant, Charlton Black, 26, married, of 50 Kirkland st., Cambridge, had cuts over his right eye. All were taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital and later discharged.

The Charlestown fire department responded for the blazing pole, adding to the excitement.

DETAILS IN RUM OUSTER CASE REFUSED

Through the medium of Asst.-Atty.-Gen. F. F. Delano Putnam, Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow today denied the request of Atty. William E. Weeks for specifications of the charges relating to improper liquor analysis made by the ousted junior state chemist, William Crawford.

Atty. Weeks was informed there is nothing in the law which requires a department head to give specifications to a removed employe, and the establishment of such precedent is not desirable.

"Of course if, during the hearing (February 5) you should be able to satisfy the commissioner your client and yourself are surprised by any evidence and need time to prepare it, I should expect the commissioner to be fair and reasonable about giving such continuance as might be necessary," the letter read in part.

Finds His Wife

Mrs. Eva Lilly, 33, 146 Walnut st., Malden, who was reported as being missing from her home for several days, was found wandering in the vicinity of Suffolk sq., Malden, by her husband, who was told of her whereabouts by a friend over the telephone.

COFFEY POLICE PROBE ORDER KILLED

After listening to a vitriolic attack on the Boston police department by Representative James S. Coffey, the House today killed the representative's order for a special commission to probe the conduct of the police officers in the East Boston court.

Coffey charged that money is being paid for "not guilty verdicts," that graft is rampant and that conditions generally are a disgrace.

He told the House he had made the cleaning up in police conditions on of his big campaign issues and he was attacked and blackjacked on the night he was to make a public expose. Another man was stabbed, he said, the same night, which he added, was witnessed by 10 citizens.

Reading from affidavits, he charged that liquor was sold by policemen at the police station and that men have "taken the rap" in the East Boston court despite the fact the officers knew the victims were not the true defendants.

In opposition to the passage of the order, Representative Thomas R. Bateman of Winchester, said he doubted if the House cared to listen to "affidavits of bootleggers." At another hearing this week, Bateman said, the East Boston court was characterized as one of the best in the State.

American Woman Wins Paris Divorce

Paris, Feb. 1 (INS)—A divorce was granted here today to Mrs. Frances Trotter Gilbert from Albert Chatfield Gilbert. They were married on August 3, 1911, at Winter Harbor, Me.

Mrs. Gilbert is a member of a wealthy and socially prominent family in Philadelphia. It is understood Mr. Gilbert's home was in Utica, N. Y.

Nagging Kills Love, Expert States

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

DEAR MISS RICE: I have written to you before and received no answer. I send you a sample of my husband's writing. I have been married 16 years and we never quarreled. I always was square and he always had his way. We had a happy home until he had another woman. Please answer soon and found out that I always always his way I'm not so. We had a happy home that showed Please ans. soon
"Margaret," Quincy.

I could not answer you for a very good reason. As in this second note, you did not give me an address or a name. Quite hopeless you see, for me to do anything but answer you here and hope that you will see it.

IS SENSITIVE

Your husband's writing shows that he is a person who is very sensitive, rather moody and sometimes sullen. Your handwriting, on the other hand, shows that you are fretful and too meek and mild, at one and the same time.

I suspect that that husband of yours needs to have you raise Cain with him—needs to get the thrill of a temperament which is not too soft and easy.

Many a good woman has lost her husband and her home because she had the idea that submission is the thing which attracts and holds a man.

It may be true now and then, but the great majority of men like excitement and the woman who is not too dependable, not too set and who will give a man an emotional surprise now and then, is the one who usually will keep her man.

NAGGING FORBIDDEN

This is a late day for you to take a different attitude, but you can try anyway.

Don't nag. Don't spend your days weeping. Don't show that your whole heart and life are bound up in the creature!

But don't be indifferent, either. Yes, I know that it sounds difficult, and that is what it is. Don't believe because your husband has done you a deadly wrong, that it is any use to continually remind him of it!

CONCENTRATION is shown by small, fine, but clear and orderly writing. The tendency to worry is shown by "scrambled" looking writing, in which the letters and the words seem to hug each other.

Fidgety and big with unnecessary a waste of time and effort.

Very often we find concentration and the tendency to worry in one and the same specimen of writing.

The illustration shown presents a perfect picture of the writer who gives concentrated and minute attention to everything, who is beset with fretfulness over the details of life and who is never able to take anything lightly, from the most important affair to the least.

Such people are often wonderful workers in some special scientific line, but are seldom comfortable companions, even for themselves.

Have Your Handwriting Analyzed

Send a sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice, noted graphologist, for analysis. Write plainly on ruled paper, in ink or pencil, adding your usual signature.

To cover clerical costs, enclose 10c in silver or stamps. Also enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. The individual analysis will be returned to you within the period of one or two weeks.

Miss Rice replies only to such questions as can be answered through the science of graphology. Write your name and address on both the sample to be analyzed and the coupon below. Letters will not be published if under no requests.

WAGNER OPERA WINS MERITED APPLAUSE

By MOSES SMITH

The Chicago Civic Opera Company presented Wagner's "Die Walkure" at the Boston Opera House last night. The writer is tempted to ask for "three cheers." Boston gets little enough opera on the grand scale, and of this, one performance is dedicated to the later Wagner of music drama. It is a small portion, but let us be thankful even for small favors. And if anyone is skeptical about a Wagnerian public in Boston, let him ponder the fact that last night's house was sold out weeks in advance.

Opera is—well, opera, as I suppose everyone will agree. It can give great pleasure as well as be exceedingly inane. But Wagner is something else again. You have only to watch the behavior of the audience at a performance of one of the "Ring" cycle, or "Tristan or "Meistersinger" or "Parsifal" You see the people gazing intently at the stage, leaning forward so that they may not miss a sound of the glorious music that comes out from the orchestra pit; you see them stifling their wintry coughs.

TWO HUB DEBUTS

You notice that there is no applause, except after the curtain has fallen, or when it breaks out spontaneously after a remarkable and moving delivery by one of the singers, as happened last night in the case of the two great German newcomers, Maria Olszewska and Frida Leider. And you observe that, unlike as in other operas, the conductor pays no attention to this applause, but continues to lead his forces in the pit and on stage. Nor do the singers pause to acknowledge the compliment. There has been no interruption, there has been only an unconscious release of the audience's emotion.

The present performance of "Die Walkure" was beautiful, a better one than we have a right to expect from the Chicago Company, which is, after all, a cosmopolitan producing operatic organization, lacking as a rule in the facilities and performers necessary for the tremendous concentration of a Wagnerian music-drama. It happens that this company has been successful with "Die Walkure" here on previous occasions, but last night's performance was outstanding especially because of the quality of the principal singers.

Only two of these had been heard in Boston previous to this season—Forrest Lamont, who was the Siegmund, and Edouard Cotreuil, who appeared as Hunding. Of the newcomers, Emil Schipper, the Wotan, and Maria Olszewska, the Fricka, had played in "Lohengrin" on the opening night of this week. Rita Turner, as Sieglinde, and Frida Leider, as the all important Brunnhilde, made their debuts here.

The singing of the women was so far ahead of that of the men as to bear comparison. Mme Olszewska had already indicated her remarkable powers in "Lohengrin," but as Fricka last night she was superb. A magnificent voice of the most ravishing beauty, great personal charm, musical and histrionic intelligence of a high order—all these combined to make her only appearance in the second act unforgettable.

Mme Leider was in like case as Brunnhilde, but with the advantage of a far more important role. Except for a slight pinching in the difficult Walkure shouts, her voice met the test of the great role in great fashion. It was not only a rich and powerful voice, but, what is rare among German sopranos, it had astonishing purity. Moreover, Mme Leider is a Wagnerian actress of the first order, acquainted with the traditions and making the role part of herself.

SEEMS A WASTE

In these two women the Chicago Company has the strength of a regiment. It is difficult to imagine two more remarkable figures together in a single company. Thrice blessed was a Boston audience for its opportunity to see and hear them together in the same performance.

In any other company Mme Turner might have been outstanding. But the competition was too "fast," as they say in sporting circles. Nevertheless, we are indebted to her for an intelligent portrayal of Sieglinde, for good Wagnerian singing. Mr. Lamont has sufficiently familiarized himself with the role of Siegmund, so that his performance last night was more than passing fair. Similarly, Mr. Cotreuil, a new Hunding for Boston? acquitted himself better than we had expected.

Mr. Schipper had indicated in "Lohengrin" that he was a capable German singing-actor. His duties in the part of Wotan were far heavier, but he rose correspondingly to the situation. Though he was by no means a great Wotan, he was an acceptable one—and this in itself is no mean achievement. Without detracting from his accomplishment, I cannot understand why Alexander Kipnis was not used for this role. Six years ago he played it with the German Opera Company, and his singing of the farewell in the last act will be one of my dying memories. Since then he has been a Wotan with the Chicago Company. To have such a man on hand and not to use him seems a decided waste of artistic material.

The name of the man without whom the performance would have been mediocre or even impossible appears by convention at the bottom of the review—Giorgio Polacco. Working frantically with an orchestra too small for the purpose and inclined to be sluggish to boot, never losing the slightest detail on stage, he brought to pass a vital work of art which enthralled the huge audience until the last note of the "Magic Fire" music—and magic it is, indeed—had sounded. We salute you, Mr. Polacco, an artist and a genius!

LAY HERO DEATH NOTE TO CRANK

New York, Feb. 1 (INS)—The police guard was withdrawn today from the home of Mrs. Anna Manning, mother of the hero of the Florida rescue, after detectives disposed of the $7000 "blackmail" letter as the clumsy work of a crank.

The threatening note directed Mrs. Manning to leave the money in the hallway of an apartment house, if she wished to see her son, Acting Capt. Harry Manning of the liner America, alive.

Nobel Prize for Kellogg, Their Plea

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—A group of leaders in Congress, including Vice-President Dawes, have suggested that Secretary Kellogg should be awarded the Nobel prize for the outstanding contribution to world peace last year.

A cablegram has been sent to the Nobel prize committee at Oslo, Norway, recommending Kellogg because of his work in negotiating the treaty to renounce war.

Vice-President-elect Curtis, Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House; Senators Burton and Fess, Ohio; Shipstead and Schall, Minnesota; Walsh, Montana, and Representative Newton of Minnesota also signed the cablegram.

British Ship Goes Ashore; 110 in Peril

London, Feb. 1 (INS)—The Union Castle liner Garth Castle, a British ship, carrying a crew of 110 but no passengers, went aground off the East Suffolk coast today while en route to London from Hamburg. Tugs were dispatched in response to a wireless call for immediate assistance.

ASK INCREASE IN COAST GUARD FOR DRY DRIVE

Washington, Feb. 1 (INS)—The first step toward reorganization of the Government's general war to make prohibition effective was taken today when Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard, submitted to Secretary Mellon recommendations for strengthening that enforcement arm to meet the smuggling situation.

Admiral Billard's report providing for a five-year program of expansion of commissioned personnel of the coast guard, and for replacement of obsolete and worn-out vessels, will be studied by Under-Secretary Ogden L. Mills, treasury budget officer, and then sent to Budget Director H. M. Lord.

The present plan is to send the proposals to Congress next December. The program could not be put into effect under the proposed $24,000,000 additional dry appropriation, according to Mellon.

Billard asked for 200 additional commissioned officers. That would permit the increase in rank of many of the old-time Coast Guard officers who have been serving for years in junior grades.

Billard recommended that arrangements be made for a transfer of about 26 destroyers from the navy.

At the same time Commissioner of Customs E. W. Camp was preparing a report for Secretary Mellon relative to requirements of that service to meet the activities of border smugglers.

WARNED BY DOG, 15 RESCUED IN LYNN FIRE

Trapped by flames and smoke, 15 persons were rescued by police, firemen and others after the barking of Buster, a little black spaniel, had led to an alarm for a fire that swept the three-story wooden apartment house at 61 Sachem st., Lynn, early today.

Men, women and children were leaning out windows, waiting to be saved, when fire apparatus arrived. Wires prevented the firemen from raising an aerial ladder, but volunteers rushed into the building and brought all to safety.

The fire, in the heart of the apartment house district, caused $3000 damage and attracted a large crowd, despite the early hour. For a time the flames threatened to spread to nearby houses and occupants of these places prepared to flee.

There were 19 persons, comprising five families, in the house where the fire broke out on the first floor occupied by Mrs. Catherine Lynn and family. Buster, aroused by the smoke, awoke his master, Robert Leonard, living in another apartment on the first floor, and Leonard telephoned the fire department. Leonard then awoke his wife, who rushed from the building carrying their two-year-old daughter, Barbara, while Leonard took the dog to safety.

Patrolman Earl Donovan, who was in the vicinity when the fire started, rescued Mrs. Lynch, who is 59; her husband and their daughter, Mary, 25.

Sergt. John Hines, Patrolman Leon Wilson and firemen made their way to the second floor and rescued Mrs. Ada Dunn, Ruth Dunn, 15, and Bernice Dunn, 17.

Occupants of the third floor were aroused by Miss Ellen Nichols, 23, but found their escape cut off. They were finally brought to safety by firemen and police. These included Omar Fornier, his wife, Mary, his brother, Joseph, and son, Larin; Mrs. Nellie Jensen and Arline Jensen, 19; Charles Donahey, Vivian Donnghy and Mildred Nichols.

Marshal Foch Gains, Following Relapse

Paris, Feb. 1 (AP)—Physicians attending Marshal Ferdinand Foch today announced that his condition, after a slight relapse yesterday, was "quite satisfactory." It was said that if the marshal really had a slight congestion of the lungs yesterday he certainly has none today.

The old soldier wished to word his own bulletin this morning, for the doctors, reading "General condition satisfactory," but one of his physicians, Dr. Hirtzler, told him where his progress had been so steady there was no occasion for another bulletin.

NABS DESERTER IN JIG-TIME

Less than 15 minutes after he had heard read at his station house a bulletin from Pittsburgh, asking the arrest of a marine corps deserter, Traffic Officer Albert Ellis stationed at Columbus ave. and Massachusetts ave. took the fugitive into custody today, and thereby earned $100 reward.

Ellis recognized the wanted man by the number plates of a car which the alleged deserter stole at Pittsburgh.

The prisoner gave his name as Albert Sidney Reinholtz. Police say he admitted being absent without leave from the Quantico marine barracks in Virginia. He was in uniform.

Put Triplets In Incubator In Fight to Save Lives

Brockton, Feb. 1—The battle to save the five of triplets, placed in an incubator, after being born to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mallof, 116 Elliot st., showed indications of victory today at the Barbara Keith Memorial Hospital.

When the babies were born Dr. George A. Boucher ordered them taken to the hospital, but before they left they were christened Sadie, Agnes and Joseph by their parents.

In the same ward with the triplets is Bernard Benoit, 2½ years old, the boy member of the triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Zenon A. Benoit of 44 Parker st. Bernard has been ill for the past two weeks. His sisters' names are Bernardette and Bernardine.

Mrs. Mallof was reported to be improving and resting comfortably today.

Waitress to Fly Again

New York, Feb. 1 (INS)—Viola Gentry, the "Flying Waitress," whose plane crashed yesterday from a height of 60 feet while she was attempting to take off, announced today that she will make another effort to set a new endurance record for women as soon as her biplane can be repaired.

COAL BARGES TO MOOR AT 'JOHN ALDEN' DOCK

An historic Duxbury dock—supposed to have been used by bluff Myles Standish and handsome John Alden on their courtship trips of three centuries ago—must now serve as a landing place for coal barges and lumber, soon, the Plymouth land court announced today.

If Harry E. Towle, wealthy New York yacht man and banker, could have had his way, the ancient wharf would have been restored to its heritage of romance. Towle recently purchased land on either side of the dock on Duxbury Bay. Real estate "insiders" had the tip that he planned to dredge out a basin to serve as an anchorage for the costly pleasure craft of his millionaire friends and himself.

Through counsel, Towle petitioned the land court for a judgment as to ownership of the dock site. Title was ostensibly held by the Duxbury Coal & Lumber Company.

According to Towle's contention, however, his newly acquired property was bounded "by the thread of a certain stream at low water." The stream, Towle's attorney maintained, flowed across the center of the old dock.

Counsel for the coal and lumber company declared that, should the stream be admitted as the legal boundary, the company's barges and scows would lose their right of way and the wharf could not be used for commercial purposes.

By special assignment, Judge Clarence C. Smith held a special session of his land court at Plymouth, studying the Duxbury dock situation at first hand. In a finding made today he upheld the Duxbury Coal & Lumber Company's claim to full title to the dock.

CHARGE POSTAL JOB 'BOUGHT'

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—The statement that he could prove the Memphis, Tenn., postmastership had been purchased was made today by Walker L. Wellford, president of the Memphis Hoover Non-Partisan Club, before a Senate committee investigating the appointment of Edward V. Sneed, acting postmaster.

Wellford asked additional time to prepare a case against Sneed, indicating dictaphone testimony was being prepared.

SMART SET GIVES DIE WALKURE BIG WELCOME—BETTY ALDEN

THERE WAS THE USUAL PROCESSION of "regulars" into the Opera House last evening to give Die Walkure a warm welcome and fill the Temple of Music from pit to dome with the glitter of jewels and swish of sumptuous fabrics that are proper Grand Opera accompaniment. Near the very center of the grand horseshoe, a chief jewel in the string, was the box that included the Horace Binneys and the Frederick Silsbee Whitwells. Mrs. Binney's formal jewels, the dog collar of pearls and diamonds and her strands of pearls, give to the box it did Mrs. Timothee Adamowska, a suggestion of formality with gleaming elaborateness.

CUT CRYSTALS GLINTED ON Mrs. Whitwell's gown of velvet, the deep, deep blue of midnight skies; and several ropes of pearls added magnificence. Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton's black velvet was the grande dame operatic attire that complements the perfection of black broadcloth and immaculate linen Mr. Haughton always wears. The Haughton box was most decorative, containing as it did Mrs. Timothee Adamowska, wearing a softly-tinted off-white satin frock, with pearls for jewels. Next in line was pretty little Mrs. Wendell Endicott, wearing a graceful French frock of white.

DOMINANT notes in the Roger Wolcott box were furnished by lovely dark-eyed Miss Barbara Welch, in fleecy black, by Mrs. Wolcott, stunning in black velvet, and by Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, in an off-the-shoulder gown of midnight satin. Mrs. Frederick Bradlee, Jr., in black velvet, and Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Waitman, in an interestingly draped gold and black brocade, shared with Mrs. Wallace Goodrich honors for attractiveness in one of the important box groups. Black, in its various manifestations of satin, chiffon and velvet, was quite the prime favorite with smart Bostonians on an evening when snow flakes drifted softly down outside to lay a carpet for homegoing motors.

MRS. E. SOHIER WELCH'S black velvet had long swinging panels. Mrs. Henry Sturgis Grew's dark-blue gown had for contrast some lovely pearls. Mrs. Sidney Winslow's velvet gown and elaborate jewels caught the eye in box and promenade. Mrs. Frank Shaw, visiting from box to box, was stunning in black, with a cluster of bright red flowers poised on one shoulder. Mrs. Edwin Sibley Webster was in black. Miss Winifred Thorndike, bud-daughter of the Harry Hill Thorndikes, had on for Grand Opera's fourth night a net that looked the deepest black, but was, in reality, a pansy purple.

A LITTLE BIT DIFFERENT TOUCH WAS accomplished by Mrs. Cecil Butler's black taffeta frock, that was finished at the hem and had a swinging sash to its wearer's heels. Mrs. George Dabney's black velvet had a motif of brilliants to accent its slender lines. Mrs. William Endicott wore dark maroon velvet. Mrs. Thomas E. Proctor, 2d, set off a slender height with a handsome white satin gown and exquisite costume jewels. All wrapped up in an ermine coat, Mrs. George Saltonstall West was a fairy-like figure in gorgeous operatic raiment for Die Walkure.

MISS FREDERICA WARNER'S SLEEK HEAD rose sweetly above her brilliantly-tinted frock, a rose of gleaming color. Miss Evelyn Royce's frock was hyacintha blue, the skirt billowy tulle and the bodice a princess sheath. Miss Betty Bird, in the Reginald Bird box, was a pretty younger opera enthusiast, in a French frock of white. Mrs. John Bryant Paine's box was intensely young setting—with Miss Carol Paine, Miss Julia Paine and Mrs. Minton Michado Warren for its feminine ornaments. Miss Muriel Wilkins, in beaded white, and Miss Louise Robinson, in blue, were in a box group.

THERE BLAZED FORTH FROM THE CHARLES Goddard Weld box a veritable sunset fire of crimsons. Miss Betty Soule's dazzling red crepe was the gayest sort of frock. And Miss Mary Hammond was fairly dazzling in a red velvet topped by a cocktail jacket all golden sequins. Certainly the mode of the moment sets off marvelously the youthful feminine of the species. Miss Margery Richardson was in Talisman rose pink; Miss Edith Wolcott, in the Roger Wolcott box, was radiant in white, an ermine coat and tinfless frock.

MISS EVELYN ROYCE has been doing the opera continuously, at matinees as well as at evening performances.

ONE CANNOT BUT BE OPEN-EYED with amazement and admiration for the bride-elect. She moves through pre-wedding days breathless from the countless attentions due an army of caterers, florists and social secretaries. Telegrams and gifts descend on her in cornucopia abundance, each to be graciously acknowledged. She weeps with fatigue and nerves at "fittings." But manages a marvelous metamorphosis; is merry and gay as pre-nuptial festivities are afoot. And walks up the church aisle serenely unperturbed as an angel on the most portentious journey of her life.

THE GAY AND GIDDY WHIRL envelops Miss Helen Rust, in Boston, and her betrothed in Manhattan, as February's advent swings their wedding day uppermost on the calendar. Next Saturday Francis Willing LaForge gives a stag dinner for his staff at the Harvard Club in New York, his gesture of adieu to carefree bachelordom. And Miss Rust here in Boston, at the Paul Drummond Rust establishment in Commonwealth ave., dines the young women who will walk sedately before her in Trinity Church, Feb. 9, when she is the lovely, ethereal vision announced by the familiar Lohengrin strains, "Here Comes the Bride."

LAST EVENING IT WAS MISS BETTY MOULTON whom a spin of the social pinwheel brought uppermost to be hostess for Miss Rust and the bride attendants. Miss Moulton entertained informally for dinner and then took her guests on to a theater. And next on the list there is Miss Lorraine Liggett who deserts Florida's waving palms and shining sands to entrain for the North and Boston, principally to stage a gay pre-nuptial party for Miss Rust at the Liggett place out in Chestnut Hill.

TO WEAR WITH BRIDESMAID finery she brings North the most becoming coat of tan imaginable, that possession doubly to be envied by the stay-at-home contingent, since it was acquired during sun-kissed hours in America's premiere winter resort. The Liggetts did their Palm Beach stay in the smartest way, having reservations at the super-exclusive Everglades Club, where the notables of the winter colony tea and dine, at the proper hours, and dance continuously.

TRAVELERS THE WORLD over have a way of coming on some of the earth's most cherished spots for midwinter or an any other season sojourn. Sorrento, on the Bay of Naples, has recently been the stopping place of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Fitch of Boston, who stayed at the Hotel Victoria. Mrs. George Bramwell Baker has been at Palermo, where opera by internationally-known singers is as much an attraction as the town's scenic beauties. Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott Blanchard (Elizabeth Percival) have taken ship, the Munargo, and sailed for the tropics, thus joining the great traveling public, that is now scattering to the four winds.

Betty Alden

The victory of success is half won when one gains the habit of work. —Bolton.

Dear Archer Catches Sailfish

Qualifying for the most exclusive club in the world, so declared from its members limited to those who have caught a sailfish, the rarest and gamest of denizens of the Gulf Stream, Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School displayed his prowess as an angler in several hundred feet of motion picture film before an audience of friends.

The fish was caught off Miami, Fla., January 18, where Dean Archer was attending the winter meeting of the executive committee of the American Bar Association in company with Atty. Joseph F. O'Connell. On the fishing trip with Dean Archer was William F. Kenney, a former Boston man and trustee of the public library. The sailfish, which has been declared to be a handsome specimen, is now being mounted by a Miami taxidermist and will be shipped to Boston soon. It measured 6 feet 4½ inches.

BOOTH TO TELL SALVATIONISTS HE IS FIT

London, Feb. 1 (AP)—Formal decision to hear a representative of Gen. Bramwell Booth on the question of his fitness to remain as commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army was made by the army's high council today.

The decision took the form of a resolution. When the action it contemplates is concluded the high court will have rectified the mistake it made, according to the Chancery court, in the first place when it adjudged the aged commander unfit without giving him a chance to be heard.

The resolution was adopted at a brief meeting of the council. The council adjourned sine die, and it was expected when it met again the representative of the general would be present to participate in its proceedings.

It was said Gen. Booth himself would be informed of its decision in due course.

Habibullah Beaten In Afghan Battle

Allahabad, India, Feb. 1 (INS)—Habibullah Khan's troops have been defeated in an engagement with the troops of Ahmad Jan (Ali Ahmad Khan), brother-in-law of former King Amanullah.

The engagement is reported to have occurred between Kabul and Jalalabad. Ahmad Jan is said to have the support of the Khugianis tribes. Other reports received here stated that Ghaus Ud-din, chief of the Ghilzai tribe and son of Jehandad Khan, who recently was executed by Habibullah, has proclaimed himself Ameer of Southern Afghanistan.

Fog Crash Kills Air Mail Flier

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 1 (AP)—An air career that embodied piloting in the World War and through air circus stunting to air mail flying come to an abrupt end on Tar Mountain here today with the death of Eugene Cecil, 35, Cleveland-Pittsburgh mail plane pilot.

Cecil, it is thought, became lost in the fog hanging over Carnegie, Pa., and mistook the Monongahela river for the Ohio river, causing him to fly southward towards West Virginia instead of northward to his home port, Bettis Field, McKeesport, a few miles from Carnegie.

PRINCE JILTED AT ALTAR BY PRINCESS

Regensburg, Bavaria, Feb. 1 (AP)—Two branches of an ancient European royal house were agreed today that love, rather than matters of policy, should be the controlling factor in matrimony.

Princess Ilka, of the Bohemian branch of the House of Thurn and Taxis left Prince Raphael Ranier of the Bavarian branch of the same house waiting at the altar yesterday, with the tearful explanation that her heart was "engaged to another."

But far from a tendency to coerce her to go through with the ceremony—which had reached the stage where the participants were merely awaiting the reading of the service — the heads of the two branches of the family gave their sanction to the action of the Princess.

There was regret that the family name should have become involved in publicity, but there seemed to be some relief that the pretty Princess, who is 24, should have discovered her feelings while there was yet time.

Today the princess was on her way back to her Czechoslovakian estates, while people wondered who the other man in the affair might be.

Expel 6 Students In 'Hell's Bells' Probe

Los Angeles, Feb. 1—Six students of the University of California at Los Angeles were expelled, three received suspensions of six months and four others were reinstated today following the completion of a thorough investigation into the recent publication of "Hell's Bells," scandal sheet on the campus.

The local chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, a Journalistic fraternity, and the publication of the annual "Razz" paper were ordered abolished.

Chewing Gum Loses Battle With Beer

Mannheim, German, Feb. 1 (AP) American chewing gum is far from popular in a country noted for its beer. A subsidiary of an American organization spent 1,500,000 marks in advertising and lost double that amount last year.

Home brewing is on the increase because taxation has sent the cost of beer up. Official figures are that last year 25,149 homes, mostly in Bavaria, turned out tax-free beer.

GIRL HIT-RUN DRIVER HELD

The alertness of a 10-year-old boy was the principal reason why Miss Muriel Thomas, 20, has a suspended sentence of two months in the House of Correction facing her today.

The youngster, Thomas Fleming of Belmont, was the star witness in the case at the East Cambridge District Court in which Miss Thomas was found guilty of failing to make herself known after an automobile she was driving struck and injured Frances Murphy in Belmont, January 20.

Young Fleming and other boys witnessed the accident, which occurred on Belmont st. The Murphy child was not badly injured, but Fleming, as alert as an experienced detective, proceeded to take the registration of the car involved, and was even quick enough to get a peek at the man in the car. It was through information so gained the police that the case was brought before Judge Joseph Donovan.

Fleming told his story in a clear manner, and pointed to William H Thomas, father of the defendant as the passenger in the car.

WAGE PARLEY IS CALLED

A special meeting is being planned by the joint conference board of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America to consider the demand of the public trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway for concessions in wage and working conditions. The present agreement between the union and the company expires May 1.

Announcement of the company's stand was made in a letter by Arthur G. Wadleigh, chairman of the public trustees, to President James J. Duggan of the joint conference board. It pointed out that the company's revenue in 1928 was $340,625 less than that of the previous year.

Unemployment in the territory served by the company is so extensive, Chairman Wadleigh wrote, that it would be unjust to impose higher fares on the car riders to take care of wage increases.

The increase of three cents an hour awarded in 1926 is not now warranted and was not warranted at the time is was given the carmen, the chairman asserted. And until there is some justification for this raise no discussion of any further raise will be considered.

EX-SOMERVILLE MAYOR DIES

Funeral services for George Anson Bruce, Civil War veteran and ex-mayor of Somerville in the late 70s and early 80s and former president of the State Senate, will be held tomorrow noon at the late home, 25 Allerton st., Brookline.

Bruce was an authority on the military history of the Civil War, of which he made a life study. He was born in Mt. Vernon, N. H., November 19, 1839. He was prepared for Dartmouth College in Mt. Vernon Academy and was graduated from Dartmouth in the class of 1861 with the late President Tucker of Dartmouth.

He began the study of law, but left it to enlist as a private in Co. B, 13th New Hampshire Volunteers. He was appointed first Lieutenant September 27, 1862, served with his regiment through the bloody battle of Fredericksburg and then drafted to staff duty. He remained a staff officer throughout the war, serving the last year on the staff of Gen. Charles Devens.

He saw much fighting in the field and at the capture of Fort Harrison, Sept. 22, 1864, was wounded, though not seriously. He was among the first of General Weitzel's command to enter Richmond on the day of its downfall, April 3, 1865, where he met President Lincoln on his memorable visit to Richmond the following day.

Surviving him are his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Foster, and several grandchildren.

MANY SEEK HUB SCHOOL POST

A close contest for appointment as attendance officer in the Boston schools will be decided by the school committee by a roll call vote Monday night. Miss Anna B. McCue, an overseas nurse, who is a certificating officer at the continuation school, heads the woman's civil service list. First on the men's list is Henry Barry, a Boston College graduate and a World War veteran.

The job pays up to $2800 and there are many applicants for the vacant position. As there is only one woman now serving as attendance officer, strong support has been given to the movement to name Miss McCue.

It was said, however, that the school committee is by no means a unit in favor of naming another woman at present. In any case, it was indicated that, whichever way the vote goes, it will be probably by a majority of one.

TROLLEY WAGE NEAR PEAK

Employes of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. will be forced to make certain concessions to the trustees at the expiration of their present wage agreement, according to a letter sent through Arthur G. Wadleigh, chairman of the trustees, to James J. Duggan, of the joint conference board, Amalgamated Association of Street and Railway Employes of America.

Pointing out that the receipts of the road are steadily falling off, while the wages are increased, Wadleigh declared that the earnings of the road come principally from wage earners who are not as well off industrially as the employes of the road. He said the trustees do not feel justified in imposing further fare increases on these riders to allow an additional increase in wages.

It will be impossible to enter into a new agreement, according to the letter, unless the employes are "willing to meet us halfway in an effort we are going to make to relieve the company of certain burdensome and unjust conditions under which we are now operating." The letter was as follows:

"In the year ended December 31, 1928, the passenger revenue of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway was $340,625.02 less than during the previous year, and it is common knowledge that the employment situation in the territory we serve is much more serious now than for a number of years.

HAVE GOOD JOBS

"Practically all of our earnings come from people who are engaged in occupations which do not pay as high wages, or enjoy such favorable working conditions, as street railway employes, and it would not be justice to impose upon these car riders any further rates of fare due to a further increase of wages in this property.

"We believe that an overwhelming majority of employes of this company are convinced that they now have good jobs. They understand, as well as we do, that the company must be fair to the riding public in order to retain good will, and in our opinion there is no better way to prove this than for us to come to an equitable agreement this year without delay, and thus assure our patrons of improved service.

ASKS CONCESSIONS

"Every year for nearly a decade the earnings have been decreasing while on the other hand wages have been increasing. This cannot continue indefinitely. We are convinced that there must be no more wage raises on this road until there is some justification which does not now exist and did not exist when the last increase of three cents an hour was awarded by a board of arbitration in 1926.

"When the present working agreement between the company and the Amalgamated Association expires at the close of business, May 1, 1929, it will be impossible for us to enter into a new agreement unless your organization is willing to meet us half way in an effort we are going to make to relieve the company of certain burdensome and unjust conditions under which we are now operating.

Seek Girl Missing From Lodging

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 1—In an effort to locate Florence Cannon, missing from her rooming house on Elm st., the girl's mother came here from Orange. Up to today no trace of the missing girl was found.

According to information given out by Mrs. Magoon, her daughter was last seen Thursday morning when she left the home of Frank Brassaw on Elm st., where she had been rooming since her arrival in Montpelier, a little over a year ago.

THOUSANDS OF TEMPERANCE PLANS ENTERED DAILY IN CONTEST

CRIME INCREASE DUE TO DRY LAW, HUB ATTORNEY SAYS

"Prohibition, a most unethic war baby, was mothered by hysteria and though cradled for nine years, still has neither teeth nor picture. It is today being nurtured by honest paralogists (fanatics to you) and hypocritically crooned to by leaders and statesmen who are lacking in moral courage to give expression to their convictions lest their personal interests may be affected by political utterances.

"Surely any sane man or woman who proclaims the benefits accruing from prohibition must be deliberately inflicting truth or is stupidly ignorant of existing conditions."

The above expression was received from a vigorous writer of Brooklyn, N. Y., in entering a plan in the temperance prize contest being conducted by the Boston Evening American and other Hearst papers, and for which William Randolph Hearst donated $25,000 as the capital award.

Besides the receipt of thousands of contest formulas designed to substitute true temperance for prohibition, in accordance with Hearst's offer, 2000 persons have written from all parts of America for the contest rules. These are sent by mail on request.

HUB LAWYER'S VIEWS

Subjoined are further interviews revealing public opinion on the contest.

FRANCIS JUGGINS, Boston attorney, — I am fully satisfied that the prohibition law can never be enforced. Then why have it? A law which is not popular can never be a success. The present prohibition law has outlived its usefulness and today serves only as a means of livelihood for those who enforce the practice is devoted to fees obtained from defending bootleggers. It was a measure originally passed to take care of an exigency which has arisen from the World War. It was passed in the first instance purely as a precautionary measure for tentative and temporary need, but without any intent of permanence. The practical inability of enforcing any such law as the prohibition law is its greatest detriment and an argument for its repeal.

The result of prohibition has been that people are now drinking hard liquor rather than harmless light wines and beers. From the viewpoint of a lawyer, prohibition has flatly failed. It has caused the court calendar to be clogged with cases. Crimes of such a nature which never before existed have cropped up. Bribery, hi-jacking, "take-the-rap" and more murders than some are willing to attribute to prohibition are evidences of the failure of the law. Why not face the facts squarely in the face and admit defeat? Those who inaugurated the law may have meant well, but they should be willing now to admit its failure.

LEWIS K. SULLIVAN, JR., Boston Representative— Mr. Hearst's offer of a prize of $25,000 for the best plan to bring about the repeal of the 18th amendment and to substitute in place thereof a plan to promote true temperance is a constructive move. No law should be allowed to remain on the statute books which is so universally disliked and broken as the 18th amendment is in its present form.

RAPS PROHIBITION

DR. CHARLES WILBUR SCHEIB, chief surgeon of Correction Hospital, Welfare Island, New York: From my observation of intolerable conditions I am entirely opposed to the workings of prohibition. Certainly temperance is a condition to be desired and one to which every physician should be willing to bend his efforts to bring about. At this hospital we have five or six hundred alcoholic cases annually. Entirely agree with Mr. Hearst's statements offering a generous prize of $25,000 in order to bring forth the best plan to substitute temperance for prohibition. Prohibition should be left to the individual.

Every physician knows that it is true that there are persons so lacking in will power and self control as to appear to need outside restraint, but I should hardly say that the present prohibition laws are proving of any benefit to them. The majority of people of average intelligence are entirely capable of practicing temperance, and by this I mean temperance, not only in drinking, but in eating, exercise, work and play. The laws of our country should permit and encourage them to practice this God-given right.

WANTS TEMPERANCE

JUSTUS S. WARDELL, Former Collector of the Port, San Francisco, Cal.: The tactics of the ultra-drys are just as intolerant as those which are practiced by the ultra-wets. Mr. Hearst is right when he speaks of the "powerful middle class" which favors temperance and is anxious to see a rational solution of the conditions which prevail throughout our country. I should like to see some plan proposed which recognizes that minorities have rights and which will eliminate from American lives the rank hypocrisy which pervades it.

Such a plan would take in the drys. Mr. Durant, in his statement, asserted the greatest domestic enemy of the country was the bootlegger. The bootleggers, in most instances, are members of the criminal classes and could be handled by the police, if they were not encouraged by the more dangerous element in our body politic—the smug citizen clothed in a garment of respectability who professes sympathy for the dry laws and votes for their continuance and yet participates in their violation. I sincerely hope that something will grow out of Mr. Hearst's plan which will successfully promote the cause of temperance.

Judge Confirmed

Washington, Feb. 1—The nomination of Harry Brigham Chase, to be an additional judge for the second circuit of Vermont has been confirmed by the Senate.

FIANCE KILLED, GIRL DYING IN CRASH

Suffering from injuries received in a grade crossing crash at Needham, in which her fiance was killed, Miss Dorothy Wright of Wellesley lay at the point of death today in the Leonard Memorial hospital, Natick.

The train killed was Webb's Norwood, 50 of 210 Elm st, Worcester.

A small coupe in which the young couple had driven on an icy grade crashed into a New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad passenger train at the Charles River crossing.

Both were employed in the advertising offices of the Dennison Manufacturing Co. in Framingham. Miss Wright had been secretary of a trade publications at the company. She and Norwood were riding in his automobile toward Natick from Wellesley when the accident occurred.

The automobile was racing along Charles River road toward the railroad crossing where there are no gate but flashing lights.

Girl's Beads Cause Static Noise on Radio Circuit

San Francisco, Feb. 1—An expert piano tuner, called in as a static sleuth, has solved the mystery of the reverberation in the KGO radio studio. After hours of investigation he summoned all of the studio's pianists and finally placed the "guilt" upon Eva Garza. She was ordered to leave her beads at home when she played at the studio, as it was found that sensitive microphones picked up a note in pitch with the beads and sent the vibrations over the air.

HANDKERCHIEFS TARIFF BOOST IS SOUGHT

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—[illegible] and Senate committees [illegible] to increase effort to the American industry. Increases in rates from 15 to 200 per cent were necessary to meet the [illegible] he said.

WOULD NOT RAISE PRICES

Imports had doubled [illegible] jumping to nearly $15,000,000,000, while labor costs in the States were three and a half times [illegible] Poland and Switzerland.

He asked a rate of 60 cents per pound on linen handkerchiefs valued at not more than $8 per dozen. Both of Mr. Wright's legs were amputated. She had been thrown from the mangled mass of wreckage of the automobile and was found under one of the rail cars.

"If the cougher in the 4th row will come to the stage door . . . there's a carton of Old Golds waiting for him!"

W. C. FIELDS
Comedian Extraordinary featured in the newest edition of the "Vanities."

"Of course, I've never said the above! But how I've been tempted to, when a heavy bass whoop or a shrill soprano bark has drowned out my best wise-crack.

"But it isn't good cricket to publicly embarrass a cougher. He isn't barking on purpose. He needs quiet, friendly counsel. He should, in confidence, be told to smoke OLD GOLDS.

"You'll enjoy the show better . . . and so will I . . . if we can just get this tip over to him. For, from my own experience with this smooth and throat-easy cigarette, I don't believe there's a cough in a capacity house-ful of them."

CONGRESS NEAR DEADLOCK ON 'DRY' FUND

Washington, Feb. 1 (INS)—Amid charges that the passage of a compromise between Senate and House over the $23 million prohibition enforcement fund enlarging item which in the present form is the largest allowance bill will [illegible] before [illegible] Congress adjourns March 4, a movement to force action on [illegible] was started.

The bill was returned to the Senate by the House with notice that the latter body had rejected the Senate amendments and requested a conference.

CRUSHED IN THE HOUSE

The senate had displayed a strong sentiment for the $24,000,000 amendment by voting 50 to 27 to insist on it in the deficiency measure, while the house rejected it by the crushing vote of 240 to 111.

With the short session rapidly nearing its end a [illegible] hearts [illegible] picked up the bill, which carries [illegible] urgently needed by [illegible] departments, $15,000,000 of which is to pay tax refund awards. These awards bear interest.

Rep. Wood, Republican, of Indiana, chairman of the house Appropriations sub-committee on the deficiency bill, and Rep. Cramton, Republican, of Michigan, both leaders in the fight against the amendment, were named to the House Conference committee along with Rep. Byrns, Democrat, of Tennessee who supported it.

TAX REFUND FIGHT

Senator Harris, Democrat, of Georgia, who created the present [illegible] when he [illegible] the $24,000,000 fund which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declared was "not necessary," in the Mckellar amendment which would require the treasury to hold open hearings and make open decisions on all tax refunds over $10,000.

While this amendment did not figure heavily in the House fight, many Democrats and Progressives were to be concerned about it than the prohibition fund.

WIN NEW AUTO WITH A SLOGAN

Can you write a good slogan? Some person who can is going to be the proud possessor of a brand-new Graham-Paige sedan, and it isn't going to cost him or her a cent. Just a few short words rightly chosen, will win this car, or one of the other two prizes to be awarded.

The Independent Taxi Operators Association is seeking a slogan best expressing Why People Should Ride in I T O A Cabs. The association is running a big novelty ball, February 11, at the Lenox Garden.

At the ball the winners of the slogan contest will be announced and the prizes awarded. The Graham-Paige sedan is the grand prize. Second prize is a beautiful fur coat, each by Scott furriers, third prize is a Rockingham console, each donated from stock by Kane Furniture Co. The retail value of these prizes totals $1450.

If you have pencil and will are employed, for the lack of expressing a good slogan is crisp, meaty words is a fascinating one.

This slogan contest has the support of leaders in business and public affairs. The slogans will be judged by a committee composed of well known business executives. Slogans should be address [illegible] to I T O A Slogan Committee, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Teacher Pastes Tape Over Girl's Mouth

Riverside, N. J., Feb. 1 (INS)—The possibility that Miss Louise May, 23, school teacher, would be made a defendant in a civil action loomed today as a result of the teacher's alleged action in pasting adhesive tape across the lips of seven year-old Frances Neve because she talked too much in classes.

Clarence J. Grant, stepfather of the child, announced his intention of bringing an action against the teacher. Miss May voluntarily resigned following the storm of protests that resulted from her act.

FLAYS LEAGUE FOR DEFEAT OF U. S. DRUG PLAN

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—The action of the opium committee of the League of Nations at Geneva in rejecting the so-called American plan of control of the drug evil has been sharply criticized by Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania.

Representative Porter, who headed the the American delegation to the Geneva opium conference in 1923, said he was making an investigation of opium manufacturing by certain foreign governments and added: "One or more of these governments will hear from Congress in no uncertain terms when the inquiry is finished."

The plan rejected by the committee was attacked by Sir John Campbell, a [illegible] from India, [illegible] Sir John declared that the plan was really composed by former Spanish member of the secretariat of the league and that it was a piece of skillfully organized propaganda.

Under its provisions each country would state its narcotic needs in advance and announce publicly where the drugs were to be manufactured and purchased.

Representative Porter declared the plan defeated was an elaboration of that proposed by the United States delegation four years ago.

He charged that Sir John "has devoted his life to the opium eating traffic in India, from which large revenues are derived." He said that the Scotchman was repudiated by the people of India a year ago and was knighted four years ago by the British Government for defeating the original American plan."

CHARGES NIGHT CLUBS 'BRIBE' N. Y. POLICE

New York, Feb. 1 (INS)—The imposing of record sentences on night club proprietors found guilty of maintaining a nuisance by Federal Judge Edwin Thomas yesterday had its aftermath today in a charge by U. S. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle that Broadway midnight retreats were paying "protection money" to city police officers.

Tuttle's allegations, which may cause another upheaval in the police department, were contained in a long letter sent of Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen.

The federal attorney's charges, it is said, are based on entries in the books of the Don Royal Club, the officials of which were given varying sentences for pleading guilty to nuisance indictments.

Federal authorities said that the club's books showed payments to policemen listed as "ice" and often as "ice $." The payments, it was said, ranged from $10 to as high as $50.

Judge Thomas, who was imported to New York from Connecticut for the night club cases sentenced club officials to five months in the penitentiary and fines of as high as $5000.

HOOVER OUT TO HOOK BIGGER SAILFISH

Long Key, Fla., Feb 1 (AP)—He had landed his first sailfish a few days ago, President-elect Hoover returned today to the edge of the fishing grounds with the hope of landing an even larger one.

On his second venture after one of the gamest of Florida fish, Mr. Hoover had selected as his companions James F. Woodrum, former governor of Indiana and Vance McCormick of Ohio. Both are of the guests of honor at the luncheon.

When he captured his first sailfish yesterday, Mr. Hoover was accompanied by Walter Newton of Detroit, a close friend of Senator James Couzens of Michigan, and Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, both members of the Senate Committee.

WEATHER FAVORABLE

Weather conditions continued favorable for the second day of the President-elect's effort to add to his catch, which included, besides the sailfish, a number of bonita, tuna, amberjack, groupers and barracuda. More than 100 varieties of fish have been taken by Mr. Hoover thus far in his two expeditions to the Florida seas.

With rest and relaxation in their short time during his vacation, the President-elect turns from the easy depths of an arm chair on top of the deck of the motor launch, which cruises slowly as his line trails in the wake of the boat.

DECOY FISH

A few feet away a decoy wooden fish painted a bright color floats on the surface of the water to attract the attention of the sailfish.

The President-elect got a real thrill yesterday in his 25-minute battle with his sailfish. On his first visit to the keys during his vacation, he looked two sailfish but both got away, one by breaking his line and the other by breaking his leader.

REED SWITCHES SENATE FOR CRUISER BILL

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Correspondent

Washington, Feb 1—A final assault on the administration's new cruiser bill [illegible] tonight [illegible] the Senate [illegible] by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

The fiery Democrat declared that Great Britain was enjoying a 20 per cent superiority over the United States in the line, capital ships and [illegible] the Harding disarmament conference.

Reed revealed these facts in [illegible] of opposition to the administration bill.

VOTE ON MONDAY

The measure providing for construction of 15 new light cruisers and a large airplane carrier probably will pass the Senate next Monday with at least 20 votes in its favor and not more than 10 against it.

A rather aroused Senate indicated it would adopt the time clause, calling for the completion of the work on all the 16 ships within three years, regardless of possible opposition.

Reed charged the Senate by announcing that the cost of ship building in Great Britain stood at a [illegible] while that the United States was only [illegible]. He further declared that under the [illegible] of the Washington disarmament conference, the Americ[illegible] commissioners agreed to this British superiority, instead of the 5-5-3 ratio published to the world.

EXPLAINS DIFFERENCE

The Missourian revealed that the [illegible] came through the fact that the British computed ship tonnage on a different basis than did the American naval experts.

The difference amounted to 20 per cent in favor of the British and [illegible] were allowed to recompute their own tonnage. As a result, he said, a British ship listed at 10,000 tons was actually the equal in tonnage to an American ship, listed at 12,000 tons and that advantage was given the British all down the line.

Wife Kills Him Because He Shaves Mustache

Paris, Feb. 1 (INS)—With four women today facing the guillotine, unless President Doumergue intercedes, a fifth, Mme. Paul Godin, may take her place with them for shooting her husband because he shaved off his mustache.

M. Godin, a notary, arrived home from a three weeks' trip just in time for lunch. As he took his place at the table, Mme. Godin demanded:

"Why did you shave off your mustache?" So some girl would think you were handsomer?"

M. Godin shrugged his shoulders, got up and started to leave the dining room. Mme. Godin snatched a revolver from a buffet drawer.

"Go ahead and shoot," Godin is said to have remarked smiling, evidently thinking she was joking, she fired. The first bullet killed him.

Mme. Godin told police Godin was squandering her fortune with other women.

Mayer Is Undecided About Envoy Post

Hollywood, Cal., Feb 1 (AP)—Confirming reports from New York, Louis B. Mayer, vice president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Film Corporation, said today he had been forced "to the point of ambition" by hints by President-elect Hoover. He denied, however, he had said [illegible] film company owners, and said he had not reached a decision as to accepting the presidential appointment.

Rumors have been rife in film circles for several months that Mayer was to withdraw from the movies March 1. Mayer took an active part in the presidential campaign. He was a delegate to the Republican national convention and [illegible] several speeches supporting Hoover.

5 Hurt When Bus Plunges 20 Feet

Cobleskill, N. Y., Feb 1 (AP)—Five persons were injured, one critically, when a bus carrying 23 persons crashed through a bridge over Cobleskill Creek, early today, and plunged 20 feet.

The injured are residents of Schenectady and were returning home from a basketball match at Oneonta.

Ruby Dickinson, 20, had a possible fractured skull. Others less seriously injured are Bertha Gray, 17, Henry Ferris, 22; Milly Vrooman, 17, and Thomas Foulner, 19.

Passengers in the bus and the two drivers smashed windows and climbed out of the overturned vehicle.

Britain Plans Large Increase in Her Navy

London, Feb 1 (INS)—Despite the Kellogg anti-war treaty, disarmament conferences and a demand for economy there is little [illegible] of the British naval estimates for 1929-30 showing any reduction from the total of $246,500,000 voted for the financial year just closing.

It is said the British Parliament will be asked to authorize the construction of the following new vessels: One 10,000-ton cruiser of the County class; two 8400-ton cruisers; one flotilla leader; eight destroyers and six submarines.

A new aircraft carrier and several sloops are also projected, but the introduction of another long-term building program is considered improbable. From 1930 onwards the requirements of the British navy are expected to be assessed year by year, according to the building activities of the other powers. The fact that the 1931 naval conference at Washington may result in further limitation of cruiser construction is being borne in mind.

ALIAS the SPOOK

by WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

(Author of "The Constant Flame," "The Good Bad Girl," "Thrill Hunters," and other popular serials.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Smith, a country girl, visiting her rich uncle, Sherwood Ring, in New York, wakened after midnight by a premonition that something was wrong in the big Fifth ave. house, slips downstairs, revolver in hand. She discovers a red-headed burglar trying to open the library safe. She makes him throw up his hands and tell her the story of his life, then she lets him go. Later, with her lovely cousin, Iris, the latter's fiance, Cosmo Sneddon, and Junior Ring, Mary goes to The Emerald, a gangsters' rendezvous, on a slumming party. There she sees the red headed burglar and learns his name is Danny Mullins and that he is known as "The Spook." Danny is fascinated with Iris Nell Cody, a dancer at The Emerald, in love with Danny, warns him to look out for Coky Jones, an ex-convict, who wants to get back into the Spook's gang. The Spook takes part in a bank robbery and with one of his companions is recognized by Mary, who by accident happens to witness the holdup. She decides to tell the police.

An outcry against gang depredations in the city sends The Spook and his gang to a retreat across the lake from the Ring estate. Iris meets Danny by accident and continues to see him. She learns what he is, but is not disturbed. The Spook sees danger ahead for himself and though fascinated by Iris tells Mary to tell her to leave him alone.

But The Spook can't keep away from Iris and finally determining to go straight he gets a job in her father's office through Mary's intervention. His life is lonely and unsatisfactory and he begins to be sure that Iris is playing with him.

CHAPTER 5

BUT it was not the end.

The Spook locked his doors and windows, even turned out the light and sat . . . after midnight in the dark as he often did when late.

The dazzlement of Iris would swoop upon him, argue for her as no words of hers might have done. Even her coquetry was a lure; he set no value on what was easily won. If he had felt his old confidence he would have broken down her whims with the arrogance women before Iris had found it hard to withstand.

But he had lost his pride of place. He was disoriented, a derelict. A smart guy could do well for himself but he had stopped being smart. Let a girl make a fool of him. . . .

Thought led him nowhere and he went to work the next day because he didn't know what else to do. But he had a word with the telephone operator

"If anyone calls me I'm out, see?"

"Certainly, Mr. Mullins." The girl widened her eyes at him with knowing smile.

Then he became aware that menace lurked in a new quarter.

At the Emerald one night Danny happened upon another stud game. Gip, the Sheik and Lefty Owens were playing with Junior. And what he expected now had come about: they were playing for high stakes and Junior was losing. Soon it was apparent that he had lost before, often and heavily.

"Better lay off that crowd," the Sheik told his employer's son later. "Unless you're out to go broke."

A flash of cunning crossed the weak, good-looking face. "Fair enough," Junior said. "Only I don't go broke. I know too much, eh, Spook? And how!"

A smile robbed the words of their sting but the Spook understood. This fellow would turn him up in a minute if it suited his racket. But Junior was for sale. . . .

He made up his mind to quit, but it didn't come to that. He overslept one morning pot so long afterwards.

It was the telephone girl who told the Spook what had happened. "Someone robbed the safe. When Mr. Potts got down this morning the door was open and everything gone. He's with Mr. Ring and they've got detectives in there."

The Spook had not removed his coat; now he grabbed at the hat-rack and closed his fingers on a cap. Only when he was half way to the street did he discover that it was not his own, this large cap which kept falling down over his eyes and blinding him.

"Lay, low," he muttered. "Sure they'll turn me up—suffering Mike, and I could have got out yesterday! It's the jinx. Shake the town now—get going!"

Versed in dodging though he was, Mullins did not know where to hide. Always before there had been the gimmick, the wire, the power higher up, to stand between himself and the consequences of his misdeeds.

And now that he was innocent there was no protection and he had no way to turn.

He dodged here and there and knew no rest, he slept on a bench in the Park and dashed to the Battery and slouched on a bench there feverishly uncertain.

"But he did not do it!" Mary Smith kept telling Uncle Sherwood this. "He had enemies—oh, there are others! The man who got in the office that night—"

"Mullins is a crook, Mimi."

"He had been. Don't you see? This was his big chance and he valued it. He wanted to do right; he wouldn't turn on you. Iris knows. The terrible creature we saw at the Emerald is the one. I know it!"

"You don't believe it, Iris? You don't believe Danny did this?"

"How should I know?" The tall girl shrugged and yawned.

"You don't care!"

"Really, Mimi!"

Uncle Sherwood broke in: "You are to stay home nights from now on, my girl."

"Old stuff, Dad. Tell it to him Iris nodded at Junior, who stood in the door, supporting himself by a hand pressed hard against either side. He was bleary-eyed and drooping, face swollen, jerky movements running over all his limbs.

"Tell him nothing." Junior mumbled, grinning. "Do the telling myself. Want a vacation, Dad. I'm taking it, if you get what I mean."

"Very well. But you needn't come back to this house I've had enough from you. Either get to work or get out of here."

The boy made a low bow, not quite steadily. "I'm getting," he announced. "G'bye, gluck and all this and that. G'bye, Mimi. If you'd been willing to marry me—well, fair enough. Don't blame you. It's a tough game but sometimes you beat it." He waved and was gone.

The girls spent a lonely day and started out on a lonely evening. Mary taut with nervousness, Iris bitterly bored.

Junior disappeared and left no word. Mary wondered. What had he meant about beating the game? Where had he gone?

Night. Danny Mullins, all Spook again, so wraith-like was he, flitting in the alley behind O'Rourke's resort.

He peered through the dust and cobwebs of a window and saw what was going on inside. Junior Ring alone and very drunk; Nell arguing with Gip. Nell dishevelled and white as a sheet.

The kid at the piano brought his hands down on the keys in a crashing discord and plunged through the swing, doors into the bar-room. Then Nell's scream arose like a flashing blade as Coky, a suddenly animated skeleton, raised a gun and fired.

The regulars slid under tables; two of the stunning women fainted, while their men tried to bundle them out.

Commotion in the street; blows on splintering panels. The Spook had one foot in the alley when he saw Clancy plunge headlong into the melee—stood arrested as Junior, with an insane aneri, reeled in his chair. Two shots cracked almost simultaneously and young Ring was looking down stupidly at a smoking revolver that hung limply in his fingers while Coky Jones was flinging his gun through a window and folding in a gibbering, writhing heap.

Clancy threw up a hand and fell as the Spook leaped back and hooked his fingers in Junior's collar. But even as the policeman went down his own gun was out, and the Spook felt a quick impact as if he had run hard against something. He kept his hold upon Junior; pulled the boy into the alley, over a fence and into the next yard, heard the hue and cry of a crowd close about the Emerald before he felt the stinging in his shoulder.

He never knew how he got away.

SECOND SECTION

$250,000 DEATHBED GIFT REVEALED

MONSIGNOR McGRATH HALE AT 86

"Churches result from the interest of the people, not from the work of any one man," declared Mgr. Cyprian T. McGrath, dean of Catholic clergymen in the archdiocese of Boston, commenting today upon his 63 years of service in the priesthood.

Yesterday, Mgr. McGrath celebrated his 86th birthday anniversary. During the last half century he has labored, often under great difficulty, in the City of Somerville. Lacking a church to start he began his work with a hired hall as his parish center. Now he can point to seven churches and eight parochial schools in his district, all the results of his pioneer effort.

ALL CREDIT TO PEOPLE

The aged priest was firm today, however, in his refusal to take credit for the success of his lifelong campaign.

As I had to do, he asserted, was to tell the people what was needed. They found a way to get it. Nothing difficult about that, was Mgr.'s modesty.

Simplicity marked Mgr. McGrath's observance of his birthday anniversary today. He permitted no deviation in his usual schedule. In the morning, he celebrated mass at St. Joseph's church. In the afternoon he received visitors. In the afternoon he devoted himself to routine church business, which he supervises entire.

YEARS REST LIGHTLY.

The years rest lightly upon Mgr. McGrath. Although the added three score and ten have long since passed, he is able to perform his parochial duties as well as ever.

A slight stoop to his shoulders a slight thinning of his silvery hair are all that indicate his advancing years.

The years have been kind to him and Catholics throughout the archdiocese are fervent in their wish that Mgr. McGrath will long be with them as pastor, priest and friend.

LIVES VERSUS GOLD THE STAKES IN AMERICA'S WAR UPON DRUGS

riches. It needs only to be cultivated. The markets of the world are open, greedy for it.

No need to advertise. No promotion campaigns required. Thousands upon hundreds of thousands waiting voracious for the dream-giving potion.

The following is from a timely article on the drug problem in America by Bernarr Macfadden, noted authoress:

AN international dope ring in full swing; profits running high into the millions; the whole country swamped with drugs. A cold, inhuman brilliance marks the transactions of these master crooks. They are not addicts. Any more than the delegates to the opium conference are addicts. They are the big profiteers.

They also estimate their "business" in dollars and cents—the shame, the torture, the doom belongs to the consumer.

They are logical in their deductions. If a man kills another outright, cleanly and quickly and in the heat of passion, we arrest him as a dangerous outlaw. We tie a rope around his neck and jounce him to an ugly death. Or we sit him in a chair and burn him up with electricity.

But the big fellows who peddle lifelong degradation and the cruelest torture the nerves of man can endure—these big fellows escape with a year in prison—or a fine.

This is the magic story of "dope." It brings wealth untold to its cultivators.

Wealth to Grower, Death for Users

There is another side to the story—a ghastly side. For every dollar to the cultivator goes a curse to the consumer. A living crucifixion, slow death to the body, pollution to the mind.

The curse is spreading like a foul plague. Especially in America. This young, reckless country is the readiest and most profitable market in the world today for the surplus crop of the poison growers. They are dumping it here.

Not less than ten tons for the final six months of 1928. Enough to put the entire population out of its senses. Enough to cram the madhouses and prisons with drug-crazed addicts.

This is the contraband—the excess beyond the utter maximum needed for the legitimate medical and scientific requirements of the people. Records of these seizures, valued between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 are in the hands of United States Attorney Charles Tuttle.

The stuff is sent into our ports with satanic cleverness. As crates of scrubbing brushes. Huge crates within which were mammoth brushes built around tins. The tins filled with high-powered narcotics. As cases of porcelain. Wicker chairs packed with opium. Artificial limbs and even tombstones hollowed out and used as crates for the prohibited drugs.

Seattle, New York, San Francisco—every port along our 40,000 miles of coast has its bizarre, incredible tales. If we could but wave them aside as "incredible." Prison statistics prevent this easy dismissal. One-third of the criminals are addicts. This is a growing—a viciously growing proportion.

Because the drug is here in vast quantities and is easy enough to procure. Suppose we could import whisky in capsules—a quart or two in a hollow lead pencil. Neat and gay for the bootlegger!

Fake Pencils Hold Deadly Dope Potions

Recently in California so many thousands of pencils were being sent from the little town of San Anselmo that postal authorities became suspicious. They broke a few. And discovered concentrated heroin packed in the slender tubes where the lead should be.

Last year the beams of a ship were hollowed out, made soundproof and the cavity filled with opium. Last year, October 2, 1928, thanks to the keen, suspicious nose of Inspector Edward Starace, a big million dollar cache was found in a small compartment built into the eyes of the ship and concealed under 540 feet of the coiled, forward chain lockers. That's an example of the infinite, uncanny patience of the Chinese smugglers.

Four of the Chinese crew were arrested. But for each four caught, forty escape. The contraband, once across the lines, can be shipped from Maine to California without interference. There are big dealers willing to risk a year in prison against the certainty of $10,000 or $20,000 a month.

One ounce of opium contains 437.5 grains. A fair dose for the confirmed addict is 5 grains a day. So one ounce taken over a period of three or four months would mean utter finish to a novice. Though he were brilliant as Shakespeare; strong as Hercules. And on a single night, December 18, a whole ton of high grade opium, cocaine and morphia was taken from a French liner docking at Pier No. 2, Jersey City.

Supply for 7500 Victims in Ton

A ton of narcotics—13,984,000 grains. Enough to kill a million and a half people. Enough to keep 7500 confirmed addicts in a year's comfortable supply. Enough to bring doom ultimate as death to 32,000 of this nation's youth. The contraband seized in the last six months of 1928 could create for us half a million new addicts.

What can we do about it?

Seventy years ago the question confronted China. She found no answer. Today 27 per cent of her adult male population are hopeless drug fiends.

Twenty years ago this country, aroused by conditions in the Philippines, saw the necessity for an immediate end to opium production except for medical and scientific uses.

A plea was sent to the nations interested in poppy and coca leaf cultivation. "Destroy your gold-bearing flower! Eliminate all surplus above humane, legitimate needs."

The naive plea resulted in the International Opium Commission at Shanghai in 1909 and The Hague conferences of 1911 and 1912.

The nations solemnly agreed to cut production and limit manufacture so that no surplus over the easily-estimated medical and scientific needs of the world would exist.

The pledges could readily have been kept as habit-forming drugs are obtained commercially from two chief sources:

The opium-producing poppy which is manufactured into morphia, codeine and heroin.

And coca leaves, from which is derived cocaine.

The total acreage involved is relatively small and under the absolute control of the contracting nations. The poppy is confined to certain sections of India, Persia, Turkey, Greece, Jugo-Slavia and China. Coca leaves are found in Peru, Bolivia and the Netherlands possessions of Java.

Treaty Proves Futile To Check Growers

The treaty was signed. How it has been kept finds eloquent answer in the colossal production of today. Ten, twenty times all legitimate needs, according to the conservatives. A thousand times these needs, according to the radicals.

"Smugglers' reunion as the ribald call it," says Ellen La Motte of the 1927 League of Nations opium conference. "Everything booming! Contraband seizures reaching staggering totals. Poppy cultivation never more flourishing. And of the eight countries controlling the forty or fifty factories, only one—America—has limited output."

America stands alone—a helpless onlooker. The alleged reformers of the fearful traffic reveal themselves as its avowed protectors. Then Cavazzoni, representative from Italy and new to the conference, demands that the nations keep the solemn treaty made. He is snubbed—ignored.

Japan protests that his plan of rationing factories would kill her drug industry, which is profitable and but nine years old.

Serbia objects that her market will be shut off.

And Sir John Campbell, British representative of India, states that he cannot subscribe to anything which will reduce drug output!

Human waste and suffering are not to be measured against pounds, shillings and pence.

Eventually Cavazzoni's blunt challenge wins the support of France, Portugal, Serbia and Japan. The meeting ends in noble resolutions passed—the traffic unhampered.

American delegates return home for the biggest year in the history of contraband narcotics.

An international dope ring in full swing; profits running high into the millions; the whole country swamped with drugs.

A cold, inhuman brilliance marks the transactions of these master crooks. They are not addicts. Any more than the delegates to the opium conference are addicts. They are the big profiteers.

They also estimate their "business" in dollars and cents—the shame, the torture, the doom belongs to the consumer.

U. S. IS THE MOST PROFITABLE MARKET FOR DOPE

They are logical in their deductions. If a man kills another outright, cleanly and quickly and in the heat of passion, we arrest him as a dangerous outlaw. We tie a rope around his neck and jounce him to an ugly death. Or we sit him in a chair and burn him up with electricity.

But the big fellows who peddle lifelong degradation and the cruelest torture the nerves of man can endure—these big fellows escape with a year in prison—or a fine.

Can we do nothing about it? Are we helpless before this menace as the drug-slaved nations of the East?

The concluding article in this series will be published in a succeeding issue of the American.

Sharkey-Stribling-Conway-Mr. Boston—To Cover Fight for the American

Chalk up another exclusive beat for the Boston Evening American.

Realizing the importance attached to the Jack Sharkey-Young Stribling bout in Miami, Fla., on Feb. 27, by its readers, the American has made arrangements to give the fans daily stories by the two contenders. In this way, and in this way only, can local fans keep informed as to just what is going on at Miami both in front of and behind the scenes.

YOUNG STRIBLING

Until a week before the battle, Jack Sharkey will send three stories weekly and Stribling a like number, so that one or the other will inform our readers of what is taking place every day of the week.

And during the week preceding the fight, each will send a story every day.

In addition, Jack Conway, noted boxing editor of the Boston Evening American, and his omnipresent pal, Mr. Boston, will arrive in the land of grapefruit today and they will start at once giving the folks at home the low-down on every angle of this important heavyweight fistic encounter.

MR. BOSTON

Don't miss the first articles by Conway and Mr. Boston on these pages.

And, above all, don't miss the stories by Sharkey and Stribling which will start on these pages next Monday.

JACK CONWAY

Remember! Conway and Mr. Boston every day, Sharkey three days a week and Stribling three days a week until the final week. Then all four every day.

And remembering this, don't forget to go at once to your newsdealer and reserve a copy of the Boston Evening American daily.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — SPEED ACCURACY INTEREST — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS — FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1929

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 1—"Hello, boys," was Mr. Boston's greeting to the battery of cameramen and sports writers who greeted the Everglades Special with Jack Sharkey aboard today.

A [illegible] greeted around the Sharkey car [illegible] lusty young fight contender, who [illegible] at Miami on Feb. 27 [illegible] at every spot the Ex[illegible] and Boxing Boston. Even Mae Wash[illegible] gave Sharkey a special bow.

At Richmond, Va., one youngster pushed his way through the crowd, seized Sharkey by the hand and said, "I hope you knock Stribling out, Jack."

GOLF will make up part of Sharkey's training during his first ten days at Miami. Jack is already in good physical condition as a result of his tough engagements with Arthur DeKuh and KO Christner. He does not require more than 16 days of hard training to make himself fit for his clash with Stribling.

The chief reasons for Sharkey's early arrival in Miami is to help the dear old ballyhoo. With Sharkey on the way to Miami, interest in the bout is growing daily.

You may tell the world that the battle of Miami shores is going to be a financial success. The gross gate will hit $500,000 according to present indications and may go more.

Al Lacey, Sharkey's trainer, and Andy Callahan, promising Lawrence lightweight, are roomies aboard the Sharkey car. Callahan is likely to be pitted against Baby Stribling in one of the preliminary matches on the Miami card.

Pat McCarthy will also appear on the Miami program. He will come here following his tussle with Big Boy Peterson in Chicago on next Monday night. McCarthy will work out each day with Sharkey.

Johnny C. Cosso and Paul Hoffman will later be added to Sharkey's list of sparring partners.

Sharkey's youthfulness made a decided impression on everybody. Most people in the South had expected to see a much older boxer. When they got a peek at Sharkey's boyish face which was wreathed in smiles at the thought of a month in Miami at this time of the year, they were greatly impressed.

ALL STARS ENTERED SURE TO COMPETE

By JOE CASHMAN

Manager Al Hart announced today that everything is in readiness for the 40th annual B. A. A. track and field meet at the Boston Arena, tomorrow night.

There is no eleventh-hour doubt over the appearance of any athlete. Everybody who is down to compete has already entered and will positively appear.

And the efficient Mr. Hart[illegible]feels safe in predicting that the field he has gathered together will make the meet one of the greatest ever conducted by the Unicorn organization.

There is a champion in every event and a strong field to oppose him. If this doesn't result in an evening of thrills, it will be the fault of the runners, not of the B. A. A. officials.

In the Major Briggs 40-yard dash is Percy Williams, world's champion sprinter by virtue of his victories in the 100 and 200-metres dashes at the last Olympics. The 20-year-old British Columbia flyer has never appeared in this city and he is proving a greater gate attraction than the peerless Paavo Nurmi, for the Finn has been seen here before.

FANS EXPECT A LOT

Because of his reputation and proven ability in the long dashes outdoors, most fans are expecting Williams to finish in front tomorrow evening. The lad, himself, however, admits that he will be greatly surprised if he should win.

He has never competed over so short a distance and has never run on indoor boards. Consequently, he feels that his chances of beating such experienced indoor short-dash stars as Daley, Wildermuth, Bowman, Morrell and others is very slim. He believes, though, that he will make a good showing.

If he should win, he will deserve to be ranked as one of the very greatest sprinters of all time. If he makes a creditable showing, all will be satisfied, for they realize the handicap under which he will be competing.

Monte Wells of Dartmouth and John Collier of Brown will put on another of their famous duels in the 45-yard hurdles. There are none better than these two young men over the sticks at this distance, they being joint holders of the world's record. One or the other should win, but there are so many able timber-toppers entered against them that unless they step in best form both may be left behind.

GREAT 600

The 600 will find Bernie McCafferty of Holy Cross, Jimmy Ball of Canada, Oliver Proudlock, Gerald Swope and Frankie Burns on the starting line. Ball, like Williams, gained fame in the Olympics. He finished less than a foot behind Ray Barbutti, after a most thrilling race in the 400-meter event, and there is great interest in his first local appearance.

He has never run in a 600, nor has he ever run indoors. His chances of winning are considered slightly better than those of Williams because of the distance, but unless he is a super-runner, he isn't likely to beat McCafferty, who has yet to lose a race this season, to say nothing of Proudlock, Swope and Burns, all great competitors over the distance.

LERMOND IN MILE

Phil Edwards, dusky sensation from New York University, is the headliner in the 1000. His principal opponents will be Sam Martin of the B. A. A. and Harold Cuthill, former B. U. flying parson, who is now running for the New York A. C. If there is anybody who can make things interesting for Edwards over this route, Martin and Cuthill can.

Leo Lermond will go after his first victory in the Hunter mile. He won the K. of C. mile with ease last week, looking just as classy over the distance as he does over two miles, his favorite jaunt.

Most of those who opposed the Nahant star last week will be back tomorrow night and he doesn't need to worry about any of them. But Ray Conger of Chicago will be a new rival and the Unicorn ace is sure to meet with plenty of opposition from the visitor.

Conger is the only runner who beat Lacyd Hahn in this country last season and he is said to be running better than ever this year.

The Peerless Paavo will walk away with the Williams two-mile event. The Unicorn committee has brought together the best field available to oppose the Finn but it would be ridiculous to concede any of them much chance to win. Nurmi will run away from any American runner with the possible exception of Lermond and the B. A. A. is putting him on because the fans want to see him, not because they expect he will add many thrills to the meet.

In addition to all these stars and events, there is an incomparable relay program and high jump and pole vault competition.

Something doing from 7 until almost midnight.

You can't afford to miss it.

MALONEY MUST GET EDGE EARLY IN GO

By RINGSIDE

Dynamite Jim Maloney of South Boston and Con O'Kelly, heavyweight champion of Ireland, are all set for their ten-round fray which will feature the boxing card at the Boston Garden tonight.

Each has a feeling that he finished in front in the recent battle in New York, which was officially declared a draw, and each is determined to prove his superiority this evening.

One or the other is bound to succeed, since draw verdicts are not allowed in this State, but not even the boys who wager on the fights, and, consequently, know the ability of the performers better than most fans, know who it will be as the even-money wagering on the battle shows.

There is much at stake in the fray for the winner will be given matches with K. O. Christner, Paulino and the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling bout during the coming outdoor season, according to Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Garden.

DIFFERENT TYPES

The bout brings together boxers of very opposite types.

O'Kelly has shown in his three starts in this country that he is a fine boxer and the possessor of one of the best left jabs in the heavyweight ranks.

If he has any power behind his right hand socks, nobody has discovered it yet.

Maloney, at his best, is only a fair boxer. He left, like O'Kelly's, is his best bet but he hooks stiffly instead of jabbing with it and his right though he uses it rarely, is packed with dynamite.

O'Kelly doesn't figure to knock out the Peninsula idol. Neither does Maloney figure to score a K. O. for while he punches hard with both hands, the Irishman has faced harder hitters and has never been knocked off his feet.

CLOSE BATTLE

Both boxers should be on their feet when the melee ends. If Maloney can slow his opponent down early in the fray, he is likely to get the verdict. Otherwise, O'Kelly should outpoint him.

One of the most brilliant preliminary cards of the season has been arranged to support the main event.

Arthur Flynn of Lawrence will meet Vincent Forgione of Philadelphia in the 10-round semifinal. Big Boy Rawson of Dorchester will meet Tiger Tom Dixon of Dover, N. H. Another heavyweight bout between Eddie Callahan, Arlington and Johnny Wadd, champion of Sweden also is on the card, while there also will be three four-round bouts.

Mehlhorn Faces Stiff Opposition

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 1 (AP)—"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, veteran New York profession golfer, today faces an onslaught against par in an effort to win his third successive winter links tournament, an achievement that would add a new record to his amazing feats the past month.

Such stars as Bobby Cruickshank, Tommy Armour, Billy Burke, Al Watrous, Harry Cooper, Al Espinosa, Johnny Golden, Henry and Al Cuici and the two 21-year-olds, Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., and Henry Cotton of London, England, are entered.

Cotton gave the field something to ponder over yesterday when he battered a cold wind for a 69.

Northeastern School Track Clashes on Tomorrow

STRONG TEAMS TILT ON BOSTON Y TRACK

By DICK McSWEENEY

The annual Northeastern track meet, held at the Hunting-ton "Y" gym tomorrow afternoon, promises to be one of the best school sport events of the winter.

Although Trade has withdrawn its 12 entries at the last [illegible] that there will be 19 schools in the meet instead of 18 [illegible] unusually interesting affairs is well certain.

Trade's withdrawal [illegible] the meet as the Concordia relay team will run against the baton passers of Quincy and Methuen [illegible] wants to see Concord in this event.

The back of the draw was nearly [illegible] and Coach Todd [illegible] races. No school was fortunate enough to get the four [illegible]

FOUR HEATS IN 300

In the 300 there will be four [illegible] meet in the final Medford, Quincy, Concord and Methuen have the [illegible] in that order in the heat.

In the 600 there are to be three heats, prizes to be given on a time basis. The pole was gained by Hew-[illegible]y, Winthrop and Wakefield in the semi-final heats. Only two [illegible] will be run in the 1000, which [illegible] time basis Lawrence and Nor[illegible] drawing pole positions.

The [illegible] will be 28 competitors in the 50-yard dash, with five heats [illegible] are good in every heat with the opening heat will be Ken[illegible] trell of Brockton, Channing [illegible] of Concord, Arthur Lew of Lawrence, Robert Ott of B C High, Sweet, Curran of Watertown and [illegible] Cunna of Medford.

John Shapinsky led the Monawks with 19 points.

EAGLE MILE RELAY READY FOR H. C.

Jack Ryder's one-mile relay team is primed and ready for the most important race of the current season which is booked for tomorrow night at the B. A. A. track meet when Boston College and Holy Cross clash in the feature baton duel on the Unicorn program.

Jack and his quartet, Charley Finn, Bill Mahaney, Jack Woodward and Bob Sullivan, think that the time has come to overcome the many setbacks that Holy Cross has handed B C during past seasons for the beating in their only meeting this winter at the Brooklyn College games in Gotham two weeks ago.

The Eagle coach confidently expects his relay team to defeat Holy Cross notwithstanding the fact that the Purple bested the time of the Eagles at the K. of C meet a week ago and also finished ahead of his team at the Brooklyn games.

MULAHY O. K. NOW

Mulahy [illegible] [illegible] that gave him the foundation for his hopes of victory. First, that Joe McCabe [illegible] on the mile team in Gotham that was defeated by a close margin and that Mulahy, the fastest quarter-miler at the Heights, has taken McCabes place. Mulahy shades McCabe in the quarter by a full two seconds.

Secondly, the B C team, although its most recent time in competition was four seconds slower than that of the Purple, was not pushed in the tourney as hard as Holy Cross. B C trotted off with [illegible] mile race at the New Hampshire State while Haven pressed the Crusaders to the limit to come out a victory by less than a foot.

Feeney, Chonis, Perry and Klumbach will run on the Holy Cross mile team, and the quartet is [illegible] one of the four-I batches of smarties indicts that has ever been assembled at one time on Mt St James.

CLOSE RACE

This race between the ancient Jesuit rivals should keep the fans on their feet for more than three minutes. The teams are very evenly matched. Boston College is trying to take off the heels of Holy Cross track setbacks, while the Purple, with a pup of a team, is determined to continue its supremacy.

The one-mile team takes the greatest share of the glamor from a Boston College standpoint, but the two-mile varsity and one-mile freshman teams both changed since their last appearance at the K. of C. meet in Feb. 4 and will also participate.

Joe Orpen has won his way into a position on the two-mile team, and it is a general opinion at the Heights that this shift will strengthen the two-mile outfit which finished a poor third in a four-cornered intercollegiate race at the Knights' carnival. Holy Cross and New Hampshire were ahead of B. C., but the Eagles did better the team from Harvard.

DALEY DISPLACED

Tom Daley has been displaced in favor of Orpen. The team will now run with Tommy Meagher, Jack O'Brien, Henry Keenan and Orpen. Orpen, a senior at the Heights, was a schoolboy sensation at 1000 yards at Medford high school.

Frank Quirk will be the new man on the yearling mile team, taking the job of Bill O'Brien, a brother of Jack of the two-mile varsity. John Donahue, Jack Carew and Brendan Moynihan complete the 1932 quartet.

Big Crowd to See Harvard-Yale Play

Indications at present are that the largest crowd ever to witness a Harvard-Yale hockey game will be present in the Garden when the Ellis and Crimson mix on March 7.

Applications are pouring into the Harvard A. A. and appearances are that the public sale of tickets will be limited.

The Harvard-Dartmouth game [illegible] also is commanding considerable attention as requests for seats for that game are being received in numbers at the Garden.

Harvard is looking forward to that game to even up for the 2-to-1 defeat suffered at Hanover earlier in the season.

Wide to Study Track In Coaching School

Although he holds the world's outdoor two-mile record, Edvin Wide, Sweden's famous Olympic runner, is going to a special school to learn more about track and field. Wide told the Associated Press today that he plans to enroll in the coaching school devoted exclusively to instruction in track and field sports, which will be started here June 5 to 29 under the direction of Ernie Hjertberg, former coach of the Swedish and Dutch Olympic teams. Wide's purpose is not so much to improve his performance in the middle distances as to learn to demonstrate and teach other events to beginners in the Swedish school where he is an instructor.

Price Gets Contracts from U. of California

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 1—Two new three-year contracts as head coach in football and basketball have been voted to Clarence M. (Nibs) Price by the University of California at a meeting of the executive committee of the associated students' executive committee. Price, at present head coach in these two sports, will renew the contracts to take effect on April 1, when his present agreement expire.

The grid coach is a popular figure on the California campus. The terms of his new agreements were not announced.

AMATEUR SIXES IN CARNIVAL AT GARDEN

The Crescent A C of Malden and the Employers' Mahaney hockey team of the Bay State Amateur league have agreed to appear at the American Legion ice carnival at the Boston Garden, Feb. 11 [illegible] The Malden-Employers [illegible] events for that night.

The [illegible] will not play a regular hockey game, however as that part of the program has been left in the hands of the University Club and the B. A. A.

The amateurs, however, will add a surprise act and have gone into strict and secret training for the event. It is said that even their own friends will have difficulty in recognizing them.

AGREE TO HELP

The B. A. and University Club teams have agreed to an extra five minutes between periods to facilitate [illegible] and [illegible] program in the most efficient manner.

The presence of the leading speed and figure skating stars means that particular attention will have to be paid to clearing the ice after each period of hockey and the extra time between sessions will enable the performers to put their acts on in full and without curtailment.

Harry Fleming, known as "The Black Spot," the New England's fore most trick and figure skater, has agreed to put on his complete repertoire on the evening of Feb. 14.

It runs the whole gamut from intricate figure work to comedy, and concludes with barrel jumping and a "fox chase," in which he is pursued by upwards of a dozen of the best girl skaters, in ballet costume, and in which he guarantees to [illegible] capture on the ice.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND

Assurances have been received from military and naval authorities [illegible] that they will be on hand.

The completed plans are not yet ready, but the leading fancy skaters of the country, as well as speed merchants, will have a prominent place on the program.

B. U. QUINTET FACES GREEN

Coach W. Karlson is [illegible] no easy time with the Boston University basketball five these days. The Terriers are favorite over the Lowell quintet of the [illegible] at Hanover [illegible] Wash[illegible] will [illegible] [illegible] the powerful Dartmouth quintet in check.

Karlson has only two of his regulars that started the season available for the battle with the big Green [illegible] Pete Soutiere and Francis Crawford are the only men left that started the first game of the season, a little more than a month ago.

Coach Karlson has the first member of the varsity to be lost. He was forced to forsake the court game because of scholastic difficulties. He may be available after the results of the examinations are known, but Coach Karlson can count on him definitely.

The loss of Jerry Berry, shifty and high scoring forward has been the greatest blow to the Terriers. Berry received a [illegible] of water on the knee against Rhode Island State three weeks ago and it will be almost two weeks before he can take his place in the lineup.

Al Spitzer, who has been playing a strong game at center, played his last game against St. Stephens a week ago. Spitzer has completed his course at the university and will not return to school for the next semester.

Boston University's hopes for a winning quintet are just about ruined for the present season, at least. In spite of the numerous setbacks, Karlson is sending the squad through long practice sessions at the B. U. Boxing [illegible] gym in the hope of rebuilding the team around Capt. Soutiere.

The boys are not lacking support because they are packing them in at all the games and have won the admiration of their followers by in game way in which they go after their opponents in spite of handicaps.

Tex First to Make Old N. Y. Garden Pay

By JACK LAWRENCE

THAT [illegible] in which Jack Dempsey won [illegible] championship [illegible] of the world from Jess Willard in Toledo, July 4, 1919, was a disappointment from a financial viewpoint [illegible]

But it brought Tex Rickard a step nearer [illegible] dollar gate and established [illegible] Dempsey and [illegible]

The latter was [illegible] later years, but [illegible] was the most profit[illegible] in this [illegible] [illegible] there was [illegible] embarked in making millions.

Rickard's next great outdoor extravaganza was to be the Dempsey-Carpentier battle for the heavyweight title in Jersey City July 2, 1921 the gate receipts of which were to break all records. That fight drew $1,626,000.

WITHIN A YEAR after the Dempsey-Willard [illegible] Tex found and was in control of Madison Square Garden, and with the assistance of the Wolf [illegible] put that giant structure on a paying basis for the first time in its history.

Getting control of the old Garden was not easy for Tex, and it is possible that he might have failed had it not been for John Ringling, the millionaire circus man. Rickard was a wizard when it came to finding a bankroll man.

The New York Life Insurance Company, which owned the Garden, demanded $100,000 in cash as a rental guaranty. And Tex didn't have it. But he literally conned John Ringling into putting [illegible] for him.

He told John that other interests were after the big arena and that if they got it they were going to make the Ringlings pay plenty for the privilege of staging the circus there during the annual engagement of six weeks in the spring.

WHETHER Rickard actually knew anything of the sort I don't know, but J[illegible] [illegible] $1[illegible] [illegible] this way began another highly profitable association for Mr. Rickard.

Judging was [illegible] that there was no [illegible] in the city, aside from the Garden where his circus could be [illegible]

Once the Garden was [illegible] Rickard really went [illegible] to the boxing [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Martha Lee Tells of the Peachy Salad

JUST as the enthusiastic small boy exclaims "Gosh, this is peachy!" so do many of us, but there is a double meaning to your words if you are referring to the recipes given below. For, be they ever so peachy, they will be found to have many really tasty and appetizing qualities.

Martha Lee

One reason why the peach is so appropriate for salads is its delicacy of flavor and color, which will be destroyed in certain recipes if not handled with care. Another reason is its versatility, for it will blend with other fruits, or it may be used alone.

Here are some peach salads which are delicious:

Peach and Pineapple Salad—Drain one can of sliced peaches, saving the juice. Arrange peaches on lettuce leaves. Fill the hollows with pineapple cubes. Add a few chopped nuts to the juice and pour over the fruit. Serve with mayonnaise.

Peach and Roquefort Salad—Drain one can of peaches, saving the juice. Arrange on lettuce leaves. Fill the hollows with Roquefort cheese which has been mashed with a little of the peach juice. Add a few chopped nuts to the juice and pour over the fruit. Serve with mayonnaise.

Peach Pineapple Salad—Drain one can of peaches, saving the juice. Arrange on lettuce leaves. Fill the hollows with pineapple cubes. Add a few chopped nuts to the juice and pour over the fruit. Serve with mayonnaise.

Sunset Salad—Dissolve one package of lemon flavored gelatine in one cup boiling water and add one cup of peach juice (drained from the canned fruit). When gelatine begins to set add one canned banana (cut in small pieces), one cup crushed pineapple (or chopped nuts and 1 cup chopped dates. Mold as above and serve cold on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Peach Pompeian Salad—Stick four whole cloves in each of six canned peach halves. Marinate the halves in French dressing which has been made with lemon juice instead of vinegar. Drain on lettuce leaves. Into the halves stick one half cup of browned, shredded almonds. Serve with mayonnaise.

Sunflower Salad—Mix a three-ounce package of cream cheese with two tablespoons of mayonnaise and beat a small pile in the center of each of eight plates garnished with lettuce. Arrange canned sliced peaches around the cheese to represent the sunflower petals. Insert in the cheese stick into the peaches, making the points upwards.

Rich and Roquefort Salad—Drain one can of peaches, saving the juice. Add an equal amount of Roquefort Cream cheese coarsely and sprinkle in cavities of peaches. Mix together and beat well 1 tbsp. oil, 1 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tbsp. peach juice, ½ tsp. paprika, ½ tsp. mustard, 1 tsp. sugar, 4 tbsp. chili sauce, 4 tbsp. mayonnaise. Pour the dressing over the salad and decorate with strips of pimento. Faithfully yours,

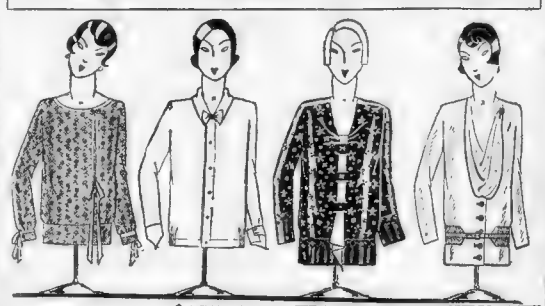
Newest Blouses Convertible



BLOUSES have been added to the already lengthy list of gifts this for the woman intensely interested in clever dress. Leading shops have on display such distinctive styles that the weary shopper lingers at the thought—Well, THAT is an idea!"

A fetching blouse is just one of these little expensive wardrobe items that never comes amiss. There are designs with an appeal to every type and for every hour—tailored models and elaborate ones affairs being reckoned as mere trifles in evening attire.

Almost every blouse that can claim superiority over its fellows is so constructed that it is convertible. It may be worn in the increasingly fashionable tuck-in manner or hide the waistline as of old. Converts daily are swerving to the former.

Bleek, a tan shade, and eggshell are favored in the special colors. Lace, plain satins, crepes and prints all are smart.

In our beauty row you see a nice little trifle in lovely beige lace of fine quality posed over chiffon, this latter repeated in narrow bands and bows for trimming. The sternly tailored model with small bow tie hints very much of the type which the younger set will enthuse over for the spring boyish tailoute.

Printed satin with a border and a tie thrust through slashings makes the third rather dignified blouse, while a softly draped neckline, gold buttons and a gold kid belt brighten the fourth model of eggshell satin.

Not all blouses have sleeves nor do they seek the pastels in the color range. Bright reds, corals, greens and black and white are numbered along with the metals for dressy wear. Chiffon, metalized, is very beautiful.

Many of the separate skirts are designed with a slenderizing yoke, fullness inserted via the flare or pleats. Velveteen, satin and crepe are sponsored at this period in the season.

About the Man Who Is Girl-Shy

By Beatrice Fairfax

HERE is a letter from a young man who describes himself as "girl shy." Yet he evidently longs for the companionship of nice girls.

"Dr. Marks," as my correspondent chooses to sign his letter, asks one or two interesting questions.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," he writes, "I am a young man of a well known college and I find myself confronted with a very perplexing problem. Here is the lay of the land as it were: The girl I love lives in my home town. But I am rather lonely and would like to meet an old-fashioned girl.

"I am extremely girl-shy and phlegmatic. Taking a city girl out requires money. I don't mind that, but why must I kiss and pet her? I am a normal young man, mind you, but to kiss a painted stage-girl certainly does not appeal to me. This, all in all, is a source of extreme embarrassment to me, coupled with extreme blushing and a striking absence of sex appeal. Will you kindly advise me as to how I can overcome this embarrassment, and inform me as to whether there are such things as old-fashioned girls to be found in a city such as this in which I am now living while I attend college?"

Are there any old-fashioned girls in our cities today? Well, that depends on what you mean by "old-fashioned," Dr. Marks.

If you are looking for a girl with a wasp waist and high pompadour, with skirts to the floor and a huge picture hat, in short, for a girl dressed in the fashions of twenty years ago, you probably will not find them anywhere except on the stage in a period drama or at a fancy dress party. But if you mean by an old-fashioned girl, one who is modern and good wholesome and earnest, as well as pretty and attractive, let me assure you every city has its full quota of these new fashioned-old fashioned girls, the charming young women of today.

Such a girl may wear her hair long or short and she is fairly sure to wear her skirts short because she follows the modern manner in dress just as we all do, men and women. But the thing for you to do is to study her personality, judging past the modern fashions and customs to which all girls must conform nowadays.

Yes, my friend, there are thousands of girls who do not permit a casual event to kiss and pet them. Girls who have dignity and self-respect.

It may be these girls are not so obvious, nor as conspicuous as the flapper type of "temptress" that reigns now. Extremely-fast girls are, of course, advertising themselves. All you must do is to interest to find them out. Go where they are likely to be found.

I would suggest that if you identify yourself with the work of the Y. M. C. A. or with a similar character-building club of your own religion, you will soon make friends among worth-while young women and these in turn will introduce you to their sisters and friends. Large, wholesome jolly girls who will be glad of your companionship between times and also are genuine and self-respecting and worth-while.

Forget all about sex appeal my friend. That particular quality is a drug on the market in this day of much press-agented sheiks. Be yourself. Be your best, most considerate, interesting self.

I have a suspicion that the girl you love back home is so much present in your thoughts that other girls do not shine by comparison with that most precious of all girls. But if you have eyes and discernment to see and understand you will find in your own and every city many girls who are charmingly companionable, yet just as fine and wholesome as your own mother, and who will make fine companionship and friendship. Look for these fine girls and you will find them and cease to be "girl shy."

What Are Your Fixations? Inquires Dr. Bisch

By L. E. Bisch, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

TO divide the life of an individual into fixations and non-fixations is not a very easy matter. In fact, the definition of precisely what is meant by a fixation is not easy. Perhaps the best way to explain the meaning of the word is to say that it refers to a certain type of behavior which is characterized by a lack of progress in the development of the individual.

It is as if we are unable to trace the origin of many of our habits and habit groups of our people as well as our neighbors' personal assets.

In an investigation to ascertain the cause of any fixation, the clinician will proceed on the assumption that with all such cases there is a point in the life of the individual at which development has ceased, and from which point on the individual will not develop any further at all, will, in short, be arrested in their development.

Such arrest of development is spoken of as a "fixation."

Most people have one or more fixations. That is while most of their traits are definitely normal a few exhibit the earmarks of a child-hood period from which, in this particular respect, they have never been completely able to emancipate themselves.

An individual with a fixation in the oral zone, for instance, is likely to be selfish, self-centered, given to unusual care of the body, and unwilling to do anything that does not spell advantage to himself.

A fixation in the period of parent overidealization would reveal a subdued and timid type of persons lacking in initiative and self-assertiveness and all due to the fact that the individual still overdoes his hero worship of his father or mother and feels in this respect much as he did when he was six or seven.

Such a person would hesitate to take any step of importance without first obtaining the assent or support of his parents.

Should the fixation be in the critilism stage the predominant trait might be a harping, fault-finding, cynical attitude.

An adolescent fixation would render the individual subject to variable moods, now depressed, now elated. It would make the man or woman impetuous, also doubtful, and given possibly to temper tantrums.

To be sure, I have given you but the briefest kind of outline concerning our fixations. Each individual in this respect is a study by himself.

Fixations, however, condition our character, happiness and success to an astonishing extent.

Most fixations are in the emotional sphere rather than in the intellectual. That is why they so distinctly affect our love-life.

Some fixations are conscious to us. We know what they are. Others again are entirely unconscious, yet they motivate us just the same.

Each person might well study his past development through the childhood years and make it a point to conquer his fixations.

Sometimes fixations are beneficial, as, let us say, religious concepts established during the second period. As a rule, however, fixations are handicaps which prevent us from developing as successfully as we should.

Who Should Be Host, and Why

By ELINOR GLYN

THREE young girls wrote to ask me what they were to do about paying when they went out—should they let their "boys" always provide the necessary dollars and cents—or should they offer their share? I should say this would all depend upon what they knew of their boy friends' resources.

If they are aware that the Georges and Dicks are well off—they can assume that they have asked them out with the intention of paying for the dinner or supper or play, but if they are just a company of young people, equally poor, I think it is rather mean of girls to accept entertainment without offering to contribute to its expense.

I think they could simply and gracefully say—"we quite understand that you have no more than we have, so, since we are both going to enjoy it, let us go fifty-fifty."

What is quite disgusting in any class or status, is when a man lets a woman continually pay.

If you ever see a young man, except under exceptional circumstances—allowing a girl or woman to pay for him—you may know there is some great want of pride in his character, and that in the end, the girl or woman will grow to despise him.

If he is very poor and the girl or woman is rich, and their meetings depend upon her dollars, she may persuade him to accept—but even then, he feels uncomfortable if he is really a man—and will not do so frequently.

He who pays the piper calls the tune—and for the woman always to be in the position to call the tune must be a humiliation for any true gentleman.

The SKY RAIDER by COL. LINDBERGH'S FLYING AIDE Donald E. Keyhoe

A Thrilling Mystery Story of Love and Danger

What Has Happened So Far

Dick Trent, Air Mail Service, incurs the displeasure of Carmichael, superintendent of Rand Field, when he flies back young Tommy Rand, stranded in a drinking haunt. Old Man Rand, owner of the field, thanks Dick. Mary Rand, beautiful daughter, is also grateful. Dick saves Mary from a fatal crash they express their love. Lawson, Dick's buddy, is missing Dick finds a burned plane and Lawson's body. A package containing $250,000 in government gold is missing. The only clue to the crime is a pistol used to club Lawson's skull. Mary recognizes the pistol as her father's. Old Man Rand admits giving the pistol to Lawson. He refuses, however, after talking to his son, Tommy, who has been missing again, to account for his actions during the early morning hours when the crime was committed. When the charred money bag is found in his own furnace Rand is arrested for the murder. The old man strangely insists he is willing to pay the penalty. Suspecting Carmichael because he knew of the gold shipment, Dick and Mary are searching his house when he appears. He nonchalantly shows them they are on the wrong track, and convinces them he, too, is anxious to apprehend the guilty one. He mentions Lawson. Dick remembers the blonde girl who was to wed Lawson.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 17

STRANGE that he should not have thought of that before!

And yet not so strange either. He might merely be imagining what he wished to believe.

A week or so previously, Lawson had picked up an old suitcase of his in the hang-out.

"Want this, youngster, or shall I just chuck it out?"

It had not been too worn. Dick had said: "Sure, I can use it."

"Well, you'd better clean it out. There's shaving powder spilled on the inside, and some other junk, I guess."

Dick had opened it. It was in bad condition, as Lawson said. He made a mental note to clean it out later on, and had not yet done so. And—he was quite sure—inside there had been some scraps of papers, notes, letters, perhaps!

He was wide awake as he flooded the room with light. The suitcase was under his bed. His fingers shook with eagerness as he opened it.

Yes, there were letters there, a crumpled handful Dick pored over them. The thought of his dead friend hung like a ghost in the background of his mind. Lawson, the best of good fellows, whose papers he was now hunting through in the hopes of linking Lawson himself with the crime.

Unthinkingly Dick drove his headlong fingers into his brain. He raced through the papers, discarding them one by one. Receipted bills, a bulletin on commercial flying, some illegible notes about finances scrawled on a bank balance-sheet, a note from a tailor inviting customers to nothing else.

The last letter fell from his hand.

A wave of complete dejection came over him. His hopes had been so high. He stared into the empty suitcase. Then all at once in a side pocket, his eyes saw a tiny scrap. He reached for it. It was the triangular flap of an envelope. It had been torn off. Something was written there, something that had almost been effaced.

Holding it to the light, Dick managed to make out the neat, small letters written in a pale ink.

D. R. C., 147 Gordon Place, Town.

It was a girl's hand, Dick judged. His pulses hammered. D. R. C.—and an address! He dared believe his quest was over.

He dressed hurriedly. Dawn had come. It was cold, and a sharp wind raced across the field. The hangars looked bleak and chill in the first light. To the eastward was a glow of the rising sun. A sudden sharp sound burst out, like the rattle of a machine gun. Perez the swarthy mechanic, was superintending a detail of men that were working over the ship about to take the morning's mail.

All these things Dick saw as if they had no reality. He breakfasted, looking at his watch. He must tell Mary his good news. He could not wait much longer.

When he called her, and told her what he had discovered, her sleepy voice grew suddenly alert. It trembled a little

"Dick, you're wonderful! Oh Dick, what can I say to you?"

"But I didn't do anything And many things had happened in such a few months. She must not be so retrospective, but must take all the joy in life as it came.

Another car was approaching him with a apprehensive glance at the wheel. Martha pulled in to the edge of the narrow country road and called out gayly.

"Want the whole road, Ethel' How are things?"

"Who is that?" Madge asked idly, after the two cars had passed

"A sweet girl, but a silly one, was Martha's answer. "She is married to a farmer hereabouts who is a bit older than she is, but he is a genuine good sort, and he worships the ground she walks on George Wentworth that's the husband, perhaps a bit stolid and quiet, but he makes a good living and everything he does is for Ethel

"What's she foolish about?" Madge queried

"Oh, she's a romantic donkey—and some time ago, a traveling salesman passed at night in his car. A worthless young scamp by the name of Eddie Harwood pur nothing, but finishly dressed George put him up for the night and that's how it started Ethel thinks he look, like a movie [illegible] ways from us. "When will your [illegible] be back?"

"I dunno

"Listen, sa I Mary. Isn't there a young lady living here whose last name begins with C?"

The urchin stared at them with round eyes

"No." he said at last, with flat finality

When they asked him again, he shook his head repeatedly. There was no hope of getting any information from the boy. There was nothing to do but wait until 10 o'clock They walked up and down the street, impatiently turning minutes into hours Then at last a fat, red faced woman, with a bundle of laundry under her arm, came down the street and started to enter the basement.

Dick halted her with a shout "We're looking for somebody who lives here" he explained "some one whose initials are D. R. C."

D. R. C., the janitor's repeated, casually. Why, you don't mean Miss Curtis, do you? Could it be Dorothy Curtis?"

Yes, What floor she's on?"

"She's not here any more. She left for San Francisco day before yesterday. She went back to her home

"You know her address then?"

"Yes, but it won't be any good to you

"What do you mean?

"She told me she would be sailing that evening for Hawaii at 9 o'clock. The poor thing had some trouble. I think. She gave up a fine position here all of a sudden."

Mary's voice was unsteady. Her words came out tremulously

"Would like the address just the same."

Three minutes later they had left the place

"We'll have to use a plane," Dick said hurriedly. "It's ten o'clock. We can get there before evening in that new ship they've got at the field."

Mary tightened her fingers on his arm in eagerness and determination.

They drove back to the field at high speed, bursting in on Carmichael at the Flight office.

"We want a ship right away," said Mary breathlessly.

Carmichael looked surprised, but wasted no time in questions. In 10 minutes they were on their way in a fast new Curtiss Pursuit. He grumbled, as the plane had not been checked for regular use. But Dick had impatiently overruled him

'Rainbow Chasing'; The Exciting Story of Madge Sayre and Her Search for Love

By THOMAS EDGELOW

CHAPTER 23

MONDAY was a quiet day for Madge. Celeste was busy dressmaking for a favorite doll, and Madge was called in as the expert modiste from New York.

The next day, it was Martha who suggested that they should drive into town and have tea at the hotel.

"I have to do a little shopping," she explained, "and Henry wants me to bring out a package from the hardware store."

"Oh, goody!" laughed Celeste. "I can spend my dollar!"

Martha drove them in to town, parking the car on the old-fashioned Main Street.

"Will you stroll about, dear, and amuse yourself while I order the groceries?" Martha asked Madge. "Keep Celeste with you if you will."

"I am going to give you a soda, Madge, out of my dollar," Celeste hospitably suggested.

"You do it next time, darling." Madge smiled down on the child, and together they made their way to the soda fountain in a drug store.

They were deliberating between the obvious attraction of a banana split sundae and something equally gooey, when a voice spoke to Madge from behind her shoulder.

"How do you do, Mrs. Winchester! What brings you so far from Southampton or Newport?"

Turning quickly, Madge perceived the foolishly-smiling face of Dick Leeds. She sprang from her seat and led him aside.

"Where do you still like me?" Madge asked in a low voice.

"Why, Madge, don't you know I do?"

"Then don't ask questions, because there is a little difficulty I can't explain at the moment. Just don't call me by my real name Either call me Madge or Mrs. Dud ley. It's a sort of joke, but—" She broke off suddenly as she saw Martha enter the store.

"An old friend of mine, Dick Leeds—Mrs. Ferris," Madge introduced them, wondering if her face were as pink with embarrassment as she imagined it to be.

"Well, it's nice for Mrs. Dudley to meet someone," Martha said with a smile. "She's had no one to talk to much, but me."

Madge felt that Dick was thoroughly enjoying the situation. Here was mystery for him, and of course his tongue would start wagging the moment he got back to New York.

He suggested all of them having tea, and together they strolled towards a hotel, surprisingly up-to-date and comfortable for such a little town.

Martha contrived to let Martha and Celeste go a few paces ahead of them.

"I haven't any time to explain anything, Dick," she said in a low voice. "But you heard of my father's death? I had to get away from all the pomp and circumstances, and," she plunged on awkwardly, hating herself for fibbing and hating Dick for being the innocent cause of it, "I didn't want to embarrass these sweet farmer folk with all the magic of the Winchester name. So don't let it out."

She hurriedly caught up with the others, making further explanation impossible.

The four of them found a table in the window of a charming restaurant. A radio was sending out dance music from New York Dick began to explain that he was only motoring through and had stopped for some minor repairs to his car. He seemed very interested in the new-found mystery, and at the same time very impressed by the tremendous importance of Madge since her marriage. He kept on hesitating over her name, now calling her "Madge" and then stuttering over "Mrs. Dudley."

Then he was talking of his own affairs.

"If you would only let me do a favor for you, Mrs. Winchester, er—er—Mrs. Dudley, I mean," the fool blundered, "I should simply be made"

If looks could have killed, Dick would have been a dead man Madge went on talking feverishly, hoping that Martha had not heard the slip. Then, looked at her out of the corner of her eye, and sighed with relief as she saw that Martha was busy explaining to Celeste that a little china bird was a salt-shaker.

Just on the way home, and never had Madge said good-by to anyone more gladly than to the foolish Dick, Martha made a rather a peculiar remark.

Madge's young man seemed confused"

"He's the biggest fool in the city of New York," Madge answered vehemently. "He used to think himself in love with me. He called me Mrs. Winchester because—because Winchester was my maiden name," and Madge hoped that Martha believed the fib

The other drove in silence fort nearly a mile, apparently inten on the road. Then, as they came down the hill that led to the farm, she turned for an instant to Madge

"I don't know you for a little time, Madge," she said sincerely. "But I've never known anyone I liked better on a short acquaintance. If ever you need a friend, dear, you could call on me."

Suddenly she realized that she was unhappy—that it would have been a relief to confide in Martha. How could it be that she was not joyous" Had she not given up everything to obtain her heart's desire, and was not Carroll now her very own?

But this was absurd' She was getting moody—just because so many things had happened in such a few months. She must not be so introspective, but must take all the joy in life as it came.

Another car was approaching them with a apprehensive glance at the wheel. Martha pulled in to the edge of the narrow country road and called out gayly.

"Want the whole road, Ethel' How are things?"

"Who is that?" Madge asked idly, after the two cars had passed

"What's she foolish about?" Madge queried

"Oh, she's a romantic donkey—and some time ago, a traveling salesman passed at night in his car. "I wasn't going to tell him. "I enquired for letters today at the village post-office, and there was one for Mrs. Dudley for you

"That's fine!" he answered carelessly. "I don't expect anything but bills, and I tell Harry to enclose all in one envelope and send them along. Her trouble is that she confuses love with infatuation."

The arrival at the farm stopped further conversation, and after supper was over Madge was called to the telephone.

"Is that you, Ecstacy?" Carroll was asking over the long-distance wire.

"How are you, darling" Your voices sounds funny." Madge answered affectionately, little knowing that Carroll had been drinking.

It's a rotten connection," he explained it. "I called you up with some news"

What is it?" she asked, a little anxiously

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

WHEN the world was created, woman followed man. But now the men are following the women.

Excuse It Please

Martyrs

is true to his wife as long as she's watching him.

Efficiency Experts

The housekeeping couple who spent the week-end at a hotel so that they could replenish their linen.

Pitiful Cases

The fellow who doesn't like to go to the circus. He says the sawdust makes him thirsty.

Public Improvements

Justifiable Homicide

When your husband expects you to darn the socks that he wore holes in chasing after other women.

Null and Void

The girl who was so bashful she wouldn't have a rubber plant in her boudoir.

Masculine Efficiency

Making a date with seven different women on seven different corners and then going out with the first one who shows up.

Advice to the Love-Worn

Thoxine has a double action—relieves the soreness and goes direct to the internal cause in chronic form, iron or other harmful drugs—safe and pleasant for the whole family. Also wonderfully effective for relieving coughs. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.60. Sold by Leyden Drug Co., Cole Drug Co., Miller Drug Co., Conservatory Pharmacy, Walker-Rintels Drug Co., and all other good drug stores.

BAER FACTS

by Arthur 'Bugs' Baer

WILHELM THE TWICE of Hohenzollern, majesty, kaiser and king of Holland celebrated his 70th birthday amid his friends or relatives

The fifth horseman is riding a bicycle now. The years have unwaxed his temperament and his mustaches

He has also ... a beard which is a sign of intelligence.

The next time he sticks out his chin he will have a mattress on it.

He attributes his present good health to the fact that he has not been defeated lately

He wore a field marshal's uniform on his 70th birthday. He ain't fooling anybody but his tailor

A field marshal's uniform is quite a deviation for a man who used to wear an admiral's costume for pajamas.

There is nothing militant about Wilhelm these hot and cold days. Even his field marshal's uniform is outranked by one of Roxy's ushers.

He still retains the titles of all

But he hasn't lost the ... He is not sore at America ... he will continue to regard ... scene plates

Why shouldn't he be?

France stopped the finest parade that Wilhelm ever started.

It was a beautiful procession until it reached the given point. Then Wilhelm sat on the point

Wilhelm ... has a ... but he was not ... trouble in Europe.

This gives him a clean bill of health.

He says he didn't start the war. He didn't finish it either.

We are glad that he enjoyed his 70th birthday.

We certainly didn't enjoy his fifty-fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth.

FAMOUS LOVERS

By COLETTE DOUGLASS

ONE of the most interesting figures of the French Revolution was that of Mme Therese Tallien. The daughter of a Spanish nobleman, Madame Tallien was married when quite young to the Marquis de Fontenay. During the Reign of Terror de Fontenay was imprisoned, and Therese, going to visit him in the jail, was also held and would have been executed but for the intercession of one of the leaders of the Revolution and the immediate release of her husband, Advancing to return to Spain, He revoked on Therese to divorce the young man and then married her. This act led to his being suspected of machinations, but on returning to Paris, Tallien rose and increased his revolutionary zeal. Therese's love and hold over Tallien was so great that he was influenced greatly by her requests. Accordingly, her efforts on behalf of many of the poor souls condemned to the guillotine earned for her the epithet of "Our Lady of Mercy." Tallien, a lenient, humane man, on the Tribunal he was feared and thrown into prison. It was also Therese. While there, she gained the favor of the future Empress Josephine.

At the instigation of Therese, after their release from prison, Tallien plotted against Robespierre and finally overthrew him and delivered France from the terrible Reign of Terror. During his political career he was staunchly supported by Therese, but when Napoleon took him to Egypt, Madame Tallien found comfort in his absence by taking the banker Ouvrard as a lover. ADVERTISING PAYS HUGE RETURNS

New York Feb 1—It pays to advertise. The most consistent users of space advertising appear in the list of few years the manufacturers have demonstrated for the first complete census and are there face plainly to be seen. Coincidentally with the enormous increase in the amount of advertising there has been a corresponding improvement in the quality, of their advertising this year.

The increase in the amount of advertising is the direct result of the huge total of business for the year. An increase in the number of users of space is also a result of the general prosperity of the country. The increase in the quality of advertising is the most significant development of all about it. Many Roads Lead to Top; Recent Executive Changes

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb 1 Many positions, presidencies of large corporations and institutions have been filled recently. An analysis of the new men selected suggests

B. C. Forbes

First—It is becoming more and more common for men not having a college education to be placed at the head of leading enterprises

Second—It is unusual rather than usual for $100,000 to $1,000,000 jobs to be given young men now under 45.

Third—Next to men promoted by their own companies, lawyers seem to be preferred for outstanding responsible positions.

Fourth—In the railroad field few men reach presidential chairs at an early age

Two extremely interesting additional appointments have just been made and it is noteworthy that in these cases the new men are under 45.

Andrew W. Roberts is picked to succeed the late General Rapp as chairman of Westinghouse at a time of Scottish pre-eminence with the Scots in charge. His is not however, his first non-legal job he was formerly president of the important Philadelphia Co.

Frances H. Davis Jr. the new head of the mammoth United States Rubber Co. is a Yale graduate who entered coal engineering but he demonstrated such business acumen that the Du Pont syndicate lured him from it after he had proved that it could produce results. Davis is also a director of the Guaranty Trust Co. which is one of the most conservatively managed banks in the country. He is also a director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, one of the most conservatively managed insurance companies in the country. He is also a director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., one of the most conservatively managed insurance companies in the country. He is also a director of the Prudential Insurance Co., one of the most conservatively managed insurance companies in the country. Common Stock Popularity Factor in Seat of Power

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW York, Feb. 1—The dramatic effort of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to turn Col. Robert W. Stewart out of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana suggests interesting sidelights concerning the real seat of corporate power.

Usually outside stockholders though nominally possessing the authority to choose directors are apathetic toward the corporate franchises, and if they act at all, they merely serve as rubber stamps to approve the acts of the active managers.

But, in spite of the customary lethargy, Mr. Rockefeller is demonstrating to small investors all over the country that they possess enormous latent power, which goes with their new ownership of corporate common stock. The new popularity of common shares, instead of bonds, as media for long term investment, has gradually shifted the right to make and unmake corporate kings to the public.

It is one of the ironies of the times that the fabulously wealthy John D., Jr., is demonstrating to the average small investor the meaning of his new financial freedom.

Another sidelight in connection with the struggle for proxies is that the Rockefellers have seemingly not materially weakened their power by giving away a huge share of their wealth. If they had retained all their wealth and allowed it to compound, they would scarcely be compelled to seek the proxies of Smith and John and Colby. How stockholders feel, that it not been for their wisdom in giving, the Rockefellers would not enjoy their present prestige.

The annual report for 1928 of Sears Roebuck & Co. demonstrates the misunderstandings that arise in the daily movement of wrist watches at the end of the year. Inventory increased, however, by 35.5 per cent, bringing the inventory to 21.3 per cent of the year's sales compared with 18.8 per cent in 1927. Notwithstanding that cash dividends amounted to only one-third of earnings Sears made recourse to temporary loans for the first time since the post-war depression.

accounting methods. The net profit reported seemed disappointing to outsiders, who had studied the monthly sales totals. The explanation lies in the fact that heavy write-offs against net earnings were made in connection with the operating of scores of new stores instead of capitalizing organization expenses and gradually writing them off over a period of years. Sears contends the drastic policy of writing them off against a single year's earnings.

WALL STREET VIEWS

Scarcity Value

THERE is an element in the current market which exerts tremendous influence in price-making although not generally recognized. That is "scarcity value." Primarily this influence, is apparent only in the highest-grade issues and is a reaction from the comparatively high prices for such stocks while the main body of the market showed a decided easier tendency. Market supply of the leading stocks has been definitely reduced in recent years by persistent absorption by investors and now this tendency is accelerated by corporate stock accumulation. Most of such stock is bought and held against a rainy day, so that it rarely comes onto the market. Therefore the individual desiring to acquire any of these stocks is forced to pay "scarcity value." The largest holdings of the best issues are unaffected by temporary fluctuations.

The Immediate Outlook

With all of the uncertainties of the next few days, money rates, loans, etc., the best-informed are looking for a highly irregular market for a while.

Barnsdall's Position

There are many friends of Barnsdall stock who assert it is one of the most attractive semi-speculations on the list. Any improvement in the general oil situation naturally would benefit the company, but even maintenance of prevailing conditions will permit the company to show about $6 a share for 1929, it is stated. Position of Barnsdall will be materially bettered within a week, when retirement of the last charge ahead of the common shares will have been consummated. Beginning February 1, Barnsdall will have no bonds, or other debts. Its sole capitalization will be approximately 2,500,000 shares of common.

Faith in Oil Leaders

Notwithstanding current price-cutting in oil, there are many who insist the biggest factors in the industry will effect a stabilization agreement.

Rio Grande Oil

Considerable difference of opinion regarding Rio Grande Oil is evident in quarters where the stock was originally sponsored for the benefit of shareholders. Recent affairs declares that indicated earnings for 1929 are around $2 a share on the 1,250,000 shares of stock now outstanding as a result of the five-for-one split-up recently. They also assert that the company has a production of 20,000 barrels as of 1st inst. Ten wells are now with six wells now flowing and prospects for additional wells before the end of this year. On the other hand, it is asserted that the company has not yet been drilled in sufficiently to warrant the present price of the stock. The more conservative interests claim that directors of Rio Grande contemplate inauguration of a $2 cash dividend, with quarterly payments of 3 or 4 per cent annually. One of the best-known and active Stock Exchange members is handling Rio Grandes on the floor.

Sears-Roebuck Analyzed

Establishment of a new low by Sears-Roebuck was coupled with analysis by a leading service. This showed that sales gained 18.99 per cent last year compared with 1927, but had a decline of profit margin from 9.31 per cent to 8.42 per cent. Net earnings increased 7.69 per cent. Inventory increased, however, by 35.5 per cent, bringing the inventory to 21.3 per cent of the year's sales compared with 18.8 per cent in 1927. Notwithstanding that cash dividends amounted to only one-third of earnings Sears made recourse to temporary loans for the first time since the post-war depression.

Davison Chemical

GREATER appreciation of the chemical securities has tended to attract attention to Davison Chemical. It is stated sensibly that representatives of one of the largest banking houses have been investigating this company's affairs. Preliminary outcome of the survey thus far was quite favorable it is understood. Davison has been engaged for the last few years in a development and improvement program which has occupied the greater part of the executives' endeavors and also has required the use of most of the income earned during this period. The program, however, is now beginning to show results, and it is quite likely that Davison's reports will reflect this betterment in enlarged earnings.

The company, it is pointed out, operated as a common carrier, engaged in the interstate transportation of crude oil. Prairie Pipe Line carries the oil shipped by Prairie Oil and Gas Co. and by others. While the bulk of the shipments are those of Prairie Oil and Gas, the pipe lines are connected with approximately 700 properties owned by others, having some 850 producing wells. Incidentally, the claim is made that Investment products in the mid-continent field should be favorable as far as Prairie Pipe Line is concerned.

RAIL UPSWING GAINS FORCE IN WALL ST.

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, Feb. 1 The forward move in the railroad list gained considerable momentum today as buying demand for the better grade of dividend-paying shares piled into the market from all directions.

New York Central's brilliant five-point run to 204½ was easily the feature of the first period, but new advances of 1 to 3 points were scored by Erie, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Baltimore & Ohio and Southern Pacific.

MONEY IS EASIER

With time money rates back to 7½ per cent and call money in abundance at 7 per cent or lower, Wall Street saw no reason for worry in the $116,000,000 increase in brokers' loans for the past week.

The New York Reserve Bank's "thirst" against outside loaning for stock market purposes was also quietly ignored, and the bulls proceeded quietly but confidently to mark up prices higher.

New gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded in a number of the war favorites in the copper and specialty list including Kennecott Copper, up 1 at 65; du Pont, up 3 at 194; Westinghouse and Western Union up 3 each; United States Steel up 2 at 183½; American Can up 2.

The Public Utility stocks, which kept in seclusion during most of yesterday's active session stood well out in front today, with Consolidated Gas and a half-dozen of the power and light stocks forging to the highest prices of the year

RAILS SET HIGH.

Canadian Pacific was at the highest price in 18 years. Chesapeake & Ohio and Pere Marquette's prices put them to record high prices

Call money renewed at 7 per cent. Overall net earnings reports were published after the close of yesterday's market by a number of the well-known industrial and railroad companies supplementing those which appeared earlier in the week. Du Pont's new gain to 194 on 670 today was directly the reflection of the huge increase in earnings for 1928, this issue yesterday was 175. The new split-up stock of the corporation is well on the way to 200, a gain of about 6 points from the low of the month

There was a better feeling with respect to the oil industry and the oil stocks, most of which recovered a part of their recent losses in fairly active trading. Sinclair advanced fractionally to 39 and Marland was up a point to 46

The commodity markets were steady, with cotton down about 8 points and grain unchanged in important sections

Prices on New York Curb Generally Steady

New York, Feb. 1 (INS)—The New York Curb market was fairly steady today. Ford Ltd. sold at 19¾, up 1; United Gas Improvement, Pratt & Lambert and Ross Stores were fractionally higher. Tobacco was off 2 points to 490¾.

Cotton futures were 1 to 6 points lower today. March 19.77, May 19.77, July 19.30, Oct. 19.23, Oct., new, 19.13

INDUSTRY HAS OWN SEASONS OF ACTIVITY

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Eastman Kodak tried out its own calendar, a 13-month affair. We adopt daylight saving, favored by industrial workers. Industry has its own seasons of activity, distinct from those set down in the calendar. It's Easter with the New England shoe manufacturers now, for they are busy with orders for the event yet some distance away. Yesterday at a news stand I bought an April, 1929, magazine, and the proprietor had just returned from downtown Boston, where, he told me, he had been looking over goods for next Fourth of July!

President John A. Rush of the Brown Shoe Co., discussing the shoe trade outlook, tells me:

Proposal to increase the membership of the New York Stock Exchange by 275 seats will be voted for by a large majority of the membership, according to replies made to extensive inquiry carried on by the Boston Evening American.

Members of the most active Stock Exchange firms who hold seats were queried as to their opinion of the proposal. Numerous individual operators who are active on the floor as well as non-active members were asked as to how they would vote on the proposition. As a result it seems that at least 80 per cent of the members will vote for the increase in membership when they cast their ballots on February 7.

Increase of 275 seats will bring the total membership to 1575. Each existing member will receive one-quarter of a seat, which at current price, means a distribution of $123,-000 to each member. The additional quarter seat must be sold within three years.

The beginning of the new year was marked by very firm tones in the wholesale commodity markets, in the period between December 15 and January 15 there was a rise of 1.3 points in the index of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, to a level slightly higher than any point reached in 1928.

The 24 commodities used in the bank's index 12 advanced while six declined and five remained unchanged. The majority of the declines were very small with recessions of more than 2 per cent, occurring only in sugar and hides. For comparable months the index was as follows:

January, 1929	88.9
December, 1928	87.5

* * *

In the last 10 years there seems to have been a tendency for stocks to firm up over the year end, although there is no evident seasonal influence making for such movement. The January rise this year appears to find its origin in a renewal of speculative activity in a number of important markets. Rubber became active very suddenly after several months of quiescence and scored a net gain of 12 per cent in the last three days of the period. There was renewed buying of copper in volume enough to advance quotations nearly a cent a pound. Slightly more speculative interest developed in the grains, while metal prices were all firm to slightly higher.

New England Telephone Has Higher Earnings in Year

THE annual report of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the year 1928, as set forth to stockholders by President Matt B. Jones, shows an increase of 6.1 per cent in net earnings over 1927. The gross revenues increased about 4.1 per cent, but operating costs increased less than 3.6 per cent.

Expressed as a percentage of average book cost of plant, general equipment and working capital however, the net earnings, represented a return of only 5.79 per cent, which figure, President Jones adds, "is still much less than is held to be a fair return in business comparable with ours."

During 1928 the gross expenditure for construction and general equipment was $32,079,000. Heavier construction a year ago (1927) was planned for 1929, because, to quote from the report, "we believe that general business in New England is increasing and will continue to do so, and the company must be ready to meet the demand for its service."

Yearly savings to subscribers, aggregating about $350,000, are forecast because of changes and reductions which went into effect in February, 1928, and changes in toll rate schedules which became effective February 1st of this year.

Agreements were concluded during the year with the Western Union Telegraph Company and the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company for the interchangeable lease and use of spare facilities thus avoiding unnecessary duplication of facilities.

During the year 191,971 telephones were installed and 171,399 telephones disconnected, resulting in a net gain of 20,572. This growth, the report adds, is less than was expected, but the closing weeks of the year have shown a slightly increased demand, and it seems probable that the gain for 1929 will be somewhat larger.

Payments to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, under the license contract, are reduced from 2 per cent of the telephone revenues, to 1½ per cent, effective as of January 1, 1929.

Improvement in local service is attributed, in part, to the building by party-line subscribers of better grades of service, and also to the speed and simplicity of the newer toll operating methods which have brought increased patronage and increasing revenues.

year gives telephone operating revenues of $89,393,295.25, and net income, after operating expenses, taxes and other deductions of $10,-303,959.68, out of which dividends aggregating $8,852,278 were paid, leaving for corporate surplus a balance of $1,451,681.68.

At the close of the year the company had 1,183,428 owned stations, 97,127 connecting and miscellaneous stations, making a total of 1,-280,615; it operated 4,241,677 miles of wire and had 21,027 employes.

Canadian Pacific Gets Big Engines

A fleet of monster locomotives have been ordered by the Canadian Pacific Railway from the Montreal Locomotive Works for service through the mountains in British Columbia.

These 29 oil-burning giants will be used to speed freight and passenger trains through the Canadian Rockies, and will each of them do the work of two or more of the lighter locomotives. When in operation, they will release for service elsewhere on the company's lines considerable motive power equipment.

These engines are technically known as the "2-10-4" type—that is, two wheels on the leading truck, ten sixty-three-inch drivers, and four wheels on the trailing truck. Each engine and tender measures over all 97 feet in length, with a combined weight of 725,000 pounds.

The new engines were designed by the motive power department of the Canadian Pacific Railway and will be built wholly in Canada. Many features of their design were tried out in the twin "3100" models, produced recently by the company's Montreal Angus shops and now in operation over its Eastern lines.

Sees English as Universal Tongue

Simplification of the English language to make it the universal tongue is urged by A. L. Zennar-Green, multi-millionaire founder and head of A. B. Electrolux Corp. of Stockholm, one of the largest companies in Europe. He is convinced the world is ready to accept English as soon as its spelling and pronunciation are modernized.

"The outstanding need of world intercourse is a language everybody can use," he said. "Science and invention are bringing all countries closer together, and we need only a common medium of understanding for every nation to come into intimate association with every other. It is not logical for people in this progressive era to keep themselves apart from one another because of language difficulties."

SHAWMUT HAS DEPARTMENT FOR WOMEN

A special women's department has been opened by the National Shawmut Bank. This department is located at the Arlington Street Branch of the bank, in the Park Square Building, and is under the management of Miss Anita Sturgis, who for the past six years has been in charge of the valuation department of Spencer Trask & Co., bankers, of Congress st.

Miss Sturgis is the daughter of the late Roger F. Sturgis of 26 Commonwealth ave., well known in Boston business circles. She is a graduate of the Winsor School and was presented to society in the winter of 1916-17. Miss Sturgis has been identified with the work of the Junior League and is a member of the Vincent Club.

Entering business, she was associated with the Houghton, Mifflin Company for nearly five years, leaving that company to go with Spencer Trask & Co. to organize its valuation department, which has had a remarkable development and growth under her supervision.

Through this banking experience and through her wide knowledge of the services rendered to women by the leading banks of New York city, Miss Sturgis is in a position to be very helpful to the women of Boston and vicinity in connection with banking and business matters. Her careful studies of the women's departments of the larger New York banks, her personal acquaintance with their managers and with some of the most successful women in the investment departments of these banks, are of great value.

The primary purpose of this new women's department of the Shawmut is to make banking easier and pleasanter for women. Miss Sturgis has an appreciation of the hesitancy which many women feel—on account of their unfamiliarity with banking and investment matters—about consulting the officers of a large bank. She believes that these women will appreciate thoroughly the opportunity to talk about such matters with a woman who is willing and glad to give them all the time, information and assistance they may need.

BOSTON TRADE IS REVIEWED BY DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co., Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding conditions in Boston: Trade in the wholesale lines continues quiet, but as the season progresses, activity in the manufacturing lines is gradually increasing.

Fairly large quantities of wool, mostly of the finer grades, changed hands during the week, and the interest is broadening to include the other lines. The goods market is apparently in a healthy condition, and, with the attractive prices of the recent openings, it is expected that there will be a good demand for woolens for the coming season.

WOOL RECEIPTS UP.

Dealers are still reluctant in contracting for the new clip. The market is firm on present quotations. Carpet wools are somewhat more active, though somewhat spotty.

Spinners still have a fair amount of business on their contracts, but at present there is but a small volume of orders for either woolen or worsted yarns being booked.

Receipts of wool in Boston for the month to date have been 14,-776,700 lbs., as compared with 13,-659,700 lbs. to the same date last year. During the month of December 16,656,000 worth of new contracts for construction were let in Massachusetts, which was 22 per cent less than the number in December, 1927.

SUMMER PRICES STEADY.

Prices on New England building lumber continue steady, but the demand is fair. Moderate quantities of the heavier building materials are moving, without much change in prices. Sales of about 3000 tons of pig iron are reported this week, about half the amount going to the local foundries at firm prices.

Furniture manufacturers are beginning to come into the market for hardwood lumber, and shipments to the automobile manufacturers continues in good volume. Prices are firm.

Further reductions are reported in the hide market, but this has failed to stimulate sales, as the Upper leather is active with prices firm, but concessions have been made in the leather which continues quiet. Manufacturers of woolen leather are somewhat busier than those confining themselves to the men's lines.

Curb Forced to Cut Sales Volume

In an effort to speed up the transmission of quotations on the ticker and reduce the period of time lapse between actual floor transactions and the printing of sales on the tape, the New York Curb Exchange announced that beginning next Monday the volume of all individual sales will be omitted from the ticker. However, at the opening the sales of each stock will be printed in full. This is the same plan as that inaugurated by the New York Stock Exchange late last fall and which is still in use.

Bank-Insurance Co-operation Urged

Close co-operation between banks, trust companies and life insurance companies was stressed in an address by Julian S. Myrick, president of the New York State Life Underwriters' Association, before the officers and personnel of the Central Union Trust Company of New York. Mr. Myrick stated that a possible $750,000,000 of life insurance was now covered by trust agreements held by American banks and trust companies, and that figures would mount up to billions before many years.

ENGINEERS Public Service Co. reports gross of $32,864,638 for 1928, an increase of 11.38%, over 1927. Net after taxes was $13,861,206, or 22.16% greater than 1927.

Great Textile Mergers and Financing Plans Forecast

LEADERS in the textile industry forecast great mergers and large financing plans as in the offing. The mergers are expected to strengthen the position of companies now making recoveries from depression. Some of the new financing, it is explained, will be needed to provide funds for expansion in the New England plant.

Creation of the world's largest textile factoring organization was projected by the Commercial Investment Trust Corporation with the announcement that it had signed a contract to acquire Frederick Victor & Achelis, Inc., one of the oldest and best known textile factors in the United States, and there will be a merger of Frederick Victor & Achelis, Inc. and Peterls, Bubler & Company, Inc., another prominent textile factor which came into the C. I. T. group last year. Combined annual volume of business of the two concerns will exceed $100,000,000.

The name Frederick Victor & Achelis, Inc. is known throughout the world as it has been since it was established by Frederick Victor in 1854 and has functioned under its present name since 1862. Members of the present management are descendants of the original partners. Thomas F. Victor will become chairman of the board, of the company resulting from the merger for which the name has not been determined, and Robert G. Rutherford, President of Peterls, Bubler & Company, Inc., will be President of the new company.

The consolidation will involve no change in policy or great relationship, as the new organization will be considered as a separate unit under its own individual management exactly as Peterls, Bubler & Company, Inc. has operated since its acquisition by C. I. T.

The combined organization will factor for approximately 150 mills and will derive from the merger the benefit of increased facilities for service, economies of large scale operation, as well as the combined experience in management of these two great houses.

Based on the volume of sales of the two individuals concerned for 1928, it is anticipated that their combined volume will exceed $100,-000,000 for 1929. This merger is of more than passing interest in the textile trade as it produces the largest factoring organization in the world capable within itself of taking care of the maximum needs of any manufacturer. It will assume a position of prime importance in the textile industry and should add very substantially to the earning power of C. I. T.

The resources of the C. I. T. organization, which ranks as the most important independent finance company, as well as the financial knowledge and experience of its staff, will be available to the new factoring unit, which would indicate an unlimited possibilities for growth and service.

The union of the house of Frederick Victor & Achelis, Inc. with C. I. T. is in line with the policy of C. I. T. to be in a position to offer a completely rounded service in the finance field. The factoring industry is closely related in many ways to the operation of Commercial Investment Trust Corporation all of which have as their aim the extension of financing service which facilitates the distribution of manufacturing product on credit.

WIN NEW AUTO WITH A SLOGAN

Can you write a good slogan?

Some person who can is going to be the proud possessor of a brand-new Graham-Paige sedan, and it isn't going to cost him or her a cent. Just a few short words, rightly chosen, will win this car, or one of the other two prizes to be awarded.

The Independent Taxi Operators Association is seeking a slogan best expressing "Why People should Ride in I. T. O. A. Cabs." The association is running a big novelty ball, February 11, at the Boston Garden.

At the ball the winners of the slogan contest will be announced and the prizes awarded. The Graham-Paige sedan is the grand prize. Second prize is a beautiful fur coat, styled by Scott furriers; third prize is a Rockingham completely equipped radio set, from Kane Furniture Co. The retail value of these prizes totals $1,450.

Here's where pencils and wits are sharpened, for the task of expressing a good slogan in crisp, snaky words is a fascinating one.

This slogan contest has the support of leaders in business and public affairs. The slogans will be judged by a committee composed of well-known business executives. Slogans should be addressed to the I. T. O. A. Slogan Committee, 2 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Wall Street Gossip

WMSG This is a funny one to come out of the Madison Square Garden station. We have it from C. F. Francis of Lowell.

"Who was Homer?"

"He was the guy Babe Ruth knocked out."

WNAC—Lydia Wood of Cambridge thinks this one is worth ten thin dimes:

"How old is your little brother?"

"A year old."

"Gee. I have a dog a year old and he can walk twice as well as your brother."

"He ought to. He has twice as many legs."

Send in to the Boston Evening American Radio Department the best joke and amusing incidents which you hear over the radio. For every contribution printed a prize of one dollar will be sent to the writer.

Car Owners Urge Goodwin Bill

Many Massachusetts motorists are being forced to sell their autos because of the present high and discriminatory compulsory insurance rates, according to letters being received by this newspaper in which the writers endorse the Frank A. Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill to establish a State fund to provide such insurance at cost.

One of those who wrote to this effect was Harrie K. Peters of 6 School st., Chelsea, who says that members of his family have placed two cars on the market at 40 cents on the dollar. He writes:

"Here are three signatures to the petition asking the legislature to pass the Goodwin-American auto compulsory insurance bill; father, son and grandson. All of us have had cars.

We now have two cars but will not register them under the present laws. The taxes, insurance, and gas tax are too much for the ordinary people to pay. The two cars will be sold of are now in the market at about 40 cents on the dollar.

If the American bill becomes law I will not be necessary for the people who use their car to give his family week-end outings a the seashore or in the country, to dispose of it.

ECONOMY IN BILL

The bill provides for a saving of $7,500,000 yearly for Massachusetts motorists on compulsory insurance this year, which is too much."

Daniel McGonigle, 19 Lyons ct., Watertown, wrote:

"I heartily favor the Goodwin-American bill. I think it is time that someone like Goodwin took in hand the matter in question so that a law may be passed for the benefit of the poor man.

"Many poor men who live at a considerable distance from car lines, buy cars as a matter of convenience in going to and from work each day. I think it is an injustice on such men to make them pay excessive compulsory insurance. I wish you luck in your efforts to help the poor man."

David E. Cornock of 821 Bridge st., Lowell, wrote:

"Enclosed you will find three signatures to the petition favoring the automobile insurance bill of Frank Goodwin and the Boston American. I believe this bill meets with the approval of every automobile owner within the State of Massachusetts. I will volunteer my services to get signatures if you deem it advisable."

WANTS FAIR RATE

Ephrem F. Dronin, jr., of 15 Pinkham pl., Lynn, wrote:

"Being an automobile owner, I am in favor of the Goodwin-American compulsory insurance bill. The present rates are nothing more nor less than highway robbery, from the poor man who must depend on his car or truck to earn his living.

"The State compels every motorist to insure his machine, but before allowing him to operate it on the highways, so I believe it is no more than fair and just decent for the State to protect us from money-grabbing concerns which do not care a bit for the person whose car is insured, but for the money they can bleed from him.

"I believe we should have a flat rate. Is it fair for us in Lynn to pay nearly double what our western section neighbors pay, although they have the same rights throughout the State?

"I believe the State should handle all compulsory insurance, compel all persons involved in accidents to report to State officials direct, with a thorough investigation of every claim before payment is made, to make sure every claim is valid, and a good stiff sentence for all hit-and-run drivers except where one hits a person and runs away, and to those persons life terms should be given. That is the only way to make our highways safe. I seldom complain, but enough is enough."

WORLD WAR VET

George H. Mackin of 72 Day st., Roxbury, wrote:

"Just a word of praise of the Goodwin-American bill. I suggested a State fund bill two years ago to a Boston State Senator, but he did nothing about it.

"I am pleased to have such a man as Frank A. Goodwin start something. I am a veteran of seven battles in France during the World War, and when we were in the army we were insured by the Government, not by a private company.

"Why not let the State supply compulsory insurance, without any outside help? I hope for the best."

Men Who Will Decide Fate of Auto Insurance Bill

On February 20, at 10 a. m., the joint legislative committee on insurance will give a hearing on the bill introduced by Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American to establish a State fund to supply automobile compulsory insurance at cost. The hearing will be conducted in Room 364, State House. Will YOU be there, Mr. Motorist?

Here are the men who compose the committee that will decide the fate of the bill: Senators C. Wesley Hale, Springfield, attorney; (chairman) Clarence P. Kidder, Cambridge, manufacturer; James G. Moran, Mansfield, attorney; James A. Torrey, Beverly, business; Representatives Eliot Wadsworth, Boston (House chairman), trustee; Alfred W. Ingalls, Lynn, attorney; Renton Whidden, Brookline, real estate; Horace W. Hosie, Franklin, retired hardware merchant; Albert F. Bigelow, Brookline, attorney; Clyde H. Swan, Barre, banker; George W. Knowlton, Jr., West Upton, retired; Victor E. Rolander, Worcester, tool and die maker; Thomas S. Kennedy, Boston, salesman; Thomas H. Carr, Boston, telephone engineer, and William P. Corbett, Somerville, attorney.

surance by a flat rate of $16 on every passenger car, $25 on trucks, and $5 on taxis, rental cars and buses.

These rates would create a State fund of $12,367,804, sufficient to pay all legitimate claims resulting from injuries and deaths due to motor accidents in this State, as well as the administration of the fund.

Instead, however, private insurance companies will collect between $20,000,000 and $21,000,000 from Bay State motorists this year for compulsory insurance.

S. C. Levine of Revere, wrote:

"Many thanks for the effort now being made to do justice to the 'under dog' who owns a car. How can the automobile manufacturers stand by and see their business ruined with excessive taxes on prospective customers?"

LAUDS MEASURE

William J. A. Combri of 61 Marshall st., Somerville, wrote:

"Enclosed are 21 signatures of persons I got to sign the petition to the legislature asking that the bill of Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston American be passed. I wish to thank the Boston American for the interest it is taking in this matter. I know from experience that this proposed law will be a good thing. It cost me $72 for in-

If your auto insurance costing you too much? Ought the law to compel you to furnish profits to private companies? Do the present zone rates seem fair to you?

Would you like the overhead cut from compulsory insurance?

Would you like to get your insurance and registration at one counter, at one time, and for one price?

If so, sign the accompanying petition:

Petition to Legislature to Pass Auto Insurance Bill

I am a citizen of Massachusetts and sign this petition to the Legislature to pass the new compulsory auto insurance bill proposed by Frank A. Goodwin and endorsed by the Boston Evening American.

GERMANY FEARS U. S. INVASION OF INDUSTRIES

Berlin, Feb. 1 (INS)—An American industrial invasion into Germany is now under way.

Germany is becoming alarmed at the growing number of American concerns entering the German manufacturing field in direct competition with German industry. The invasion is made possible by the extreme shortage of capital in Germany. A large part of Germany's capital reserves was destroyed by the war and inflation and has not yet been replaced.

Usually this invasion takes one of three forms: Erection of an American branch factories in Germany to produce American goods on German soil; outright purchase of German industries and their operation for American account, or participation in German industry through purchase of large blocks of stocks.

AUTOS IN LEAD

The American automobile industry is in the front rank of this invasion. But American soap, cosmetic, fountain pen, refrigerator, vacuum cleaner, washing machine, baking powder and sanitary equipment industries are right behind it. Even the American soft drink industry is preparing to join the host, though German beer and wine is as good as ever.

The leading individual purchaser of German industries is W. A. Harriman, who is buying up almost the entire upper Silesian iron, coal and zinc industries, valued at tens of millions of dollars.

CHEAP WAGES

The advantages of the American invaders are two-fold. They find highly skilled labor at cheap wages and they avoid the high German import duties. German labor is paid less than one-fourth of the American wage scale.

But the invasion is also significance to America. The goods produced by American-owned industry in Germany are intended not only for the German market but also for export, especially to South America. This means that American capital is building up an industry in a foreign country to compete directly with American labor.

Election of Judges

Massachusetts Should Hasten to Follow Where Sister States Have Shown the Way

Election of judges by popular vote is an evolutionary change that sound progress has brought to many of the states of the Union.

A proposal is now before the Legislature to grant the people of Massachusetts the right, which is theirs inherently under democratic government, of choosing THEIR judges.

Although there will always be hue and cry against any alteration of moss-covered customs, however archaic and indefensible they are in the light of present-day thought this praiseworthy cause will eventually triumph.

The spirit of progress, strictly in accord with the fundamentals of American freedom, demands that the public officials and lawmakers of this Commonwealth promote the popular election of our judges as a principle as cardinal to free government as the election of Governors and Senators and others of the executive and legislative branches of our government.

In no less degree does it demand that the people make themselves heard in furtherance of a cause of no great importance to them and posterity.

Americans long ago ceased to believe in the divine right of kings.

And the Massachusetts "Sons of Liberty," of which the illustrious patriot, Samuel Adams, was the leading light, were among the first to wrap this foolish doctrine in sackcloth and throw it into the pit of oblivion.

There is no reason today why the people of Massachusetts should tarry in casting off the shackles of another relic of government—appointive judges—just as inconsistent with American principles as the other discarded doctrine.

There is no reason to consider the bench as "sacred," and above the control of the voters, any more than the administrative and legislative arms of our political structure.

There is no reason to deny the people of Massachusetts the privilege of electing their judges, and the opportunity of retiring those of whom they disapprove, any more than there would be to refuse to "trust" them with election of other public officials.

Massachusetts, usually a leader, should hasten to follow in this instance where sister states have so clearly shown the way.

Mr. Harding, Cartoonist

He Presents an Old and Important Truth

Mr. Harding's Cartoon Emphasizes TRUTH That Will Last Forever

Nelson Harding, whose excellent work is widely known, has recently joined the Hearst newspapers. We are glad to present his sound thoughts and pictorial comments to our readers.

The picture above contains a truth important for all time.

Selecting the Zeppelin that recently crossed the Atlantic to represent science, and a village church to represent religion, Mr. Harding wisely calls his picture "Modern Civilization."

Modern civilization would be impossible without SCIENCE. And any REAL civilization would be impossible without religion.

RELIGION SUPPLIES THE NEED OF THE SOUL, and nothing else can supply that need.

Our real life is SPIRITUAL life. Man is what he BELIEVES. If he believes that there is a better life after this, and that men by good deeds can deserve it, he is happier, infinitely, than he who believes in nothing.

He who admires the achievements of science, lifting men from ignorance, poverty and disease to comfort and achievement, at the same time RESPECTING AND VENERATING RELIGION, is the good citizen.

Science solves many of our problems, ends many of our difficulties, answers many of our questions.

With its help we can talk around the earth, fly in the air, explore the bottoms of the seas, make the lightning and the cataract our servants.

Science answers for us all questions except this MOST IMPORTANT QUESTION.

If we want to travel 500 miles an hour, science tells us we can do it.

If we want to increase the soil's fertility, extract the earth's mineral wealth, transform the slumbering power of petroleum into the high speed of the automobile, science tells us HOW all those things can be done.

If Opera Was Staged Like Fights

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

On Length of Life

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

TWO sharply opposed views of human life have been set forth coincident with the meeting of the American Association in New York. One of them is Dr. Fisk's idea that man does not live as long as he could, or, perhaps, as he should; the other is Sir Arthur Keith's dictum that we ought to be through with life at fifty years at the latest, and that man has been unduly prolonging his individual existence. Sir Arthur avers that men have done all their best work by the time they are 45 or 50. Sir Arthur himself has passed those ripe times of life, and, as he sends a promising example of human ability, perhaps in the future he may personally add to the abundant historical evidence that often the greatest things that men do are done after—sometimes long after—the first half century of life.

Human lives may be likened to steam bubbles. Men are more like bubbles than they suspect. You put a pot of water on the fire. If you could use a transparent vessel the phenomena to be mentioned would be more plainly seen.

As the bottom gets warm, a layer of fine shining little bubbles appears covering it. It is like nature preparing to people the earth with living inhabitants. The bubbles increase in number and size and begin to rise through the liquid. Let us liken each bubble to a human being just starting his life career.

The bubbles increase in number and in size, and when they arrive at the top of the water they disappear by bursting into steam. It is the end of their individual life. Nothing is left of them but some curls of vapor. Shall we liken that to the immaterial part of man, set free at the death of the body?

If the boiling is not violent, but only just sufficient to keep the water in the pot filled with rising bubbles, you may see that they generally increase in magnitude up to a certain general limit. I have seen this beautifully in a warm spring in Yellowstone Park, where huge bubbles, swelling as they emerge out of the depths and glittering like polished silver balls, come majestically to the surface and burst in the air—great souls exploding into immortality.

If the heat is moderate the speed of ascension of the bubbles is moderate also, and so their life is prolonged, while, at the same time, the birth of new bubbles is restrained and the crowding is less than where a greater degree of heat rapidly produces thronging masses which rise swiftly to the top and burst by wholesale into steam after very brief periods of individual existence.

Is this the state of affairs that would result from Sir Arthur Keith's proposed shortening of human life? Such shortening would surely be attended by an increase of aggregate numbers. Every physiological function would be accelerated in a short, hot life. But would that be to the advantage of the intellectual functions? The ancients who lived by the maxim, "a sound mind in a sound body," did not think that the mere physical disabilities of age should be regarded as setting a time limit for an active mind.

The fact is that, as the world goes now, the average length of life seems to be fairly well adjusted to its conditions. The pot is boiling at a balanced rate: the bubbles last long enough to be well formed, and the crowding near the top is not serious.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I NOTICED it first some years ago.

It branched off from the main highway, loitered over a little brook, dipped through the ferns, growing more and more shadowy as it went. Then, with a sudden turn, it was lost in the forest.

"Some day when I have time I will follow that trail," I said to myself, thinking longingly of what lay beyond that tantalizing turn.

Then I went on. And all through the years I have wondered where that wood trail led. Often I have wished that I had followed it, for the memory of it still tugs at my heart.

Yesterday I went back that way. But though I looked for a long time I could not find my trail. Perhaps the woods have grown over it. Perhaps I did not look in the right place. I shall never know. But I shall always be sorry that I did not follow it that first time and always feel that my life is a little poorer for that lost chance.

Lost trails—how many of them there are in lives!

When we were young they opened off the highway on every side.

Lovely discoveries waited for us there around the turn—flickered like golden birds through the shadows—

Romance and adventure—they were waiting there—

Gallant, generous deeds—high ambition—

Silent white places very near to God—

Hidden altars of sacrifice—

Merry gypsy camps—

All of them were waiting, there in the shadow—

"Some day when we have time we will follow these trails," we said to ourselves.

But somehow the day never came.

We were too busy and distracted—

There was so much to do on the great highway, so much to see.

Very little of it was worth doing or worth seeing.

None of it could compare in loveliness with that which we might have found along the secret trails—

But we couldn't tear ourselves away—

And, as time went on, we didn't want to tear ourselves away.

Why had we been so crazy about wood trails anyway?

They were uncomfortable things—dark and slippery—there was no telling what might happen if we left the highway and went rummaging off through the woods.

It was really dangerous, and, besides, people might laugh at you.

So we tried to put our lost trails from our minds.

But they would not be quite put out.

And sooner or later we went back that way and tried to find them. But they had vanished. Other eyes—younger eyes—might see them, but we could not see them any more.

And suddenly all life seemed the poorer because we had lost our trails.

The Hearst Papers Advocate

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.
2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no State to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt reapportionment.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.
6. A Federal Sales Tax, the income from which to be used in reducing other Federal taxation, particularly the Income Tax on earned incomes.
7. Reform of the Calendar Year, making thirteen equal months of four weeks each, and rearrangement of holidays to make them fall on Saturdays.
8. Build the Nicaragua Canal as a commercial and defense measure; it was first advocated by the Hearst papers in 1895.

Day by Day Abroad

O.O. McINTYRE

PARIS, Feb. 1—Gene Tunney telephoned today from the Hotel George V, and later with our wives met for tea at the Ritz. The champion and his bride had been on a shopping expedition in London and Paris and were hurrying back to their home near Venice.

They will not return to America until autumn, Tunney having just purchased an isolated villa in Italy for summer occupancy. Mrs. Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, fits the hackneyed phrase "beautiful and charming." She is a tall brunette of athletic build, and vibrant with girlish freshness.

They seem a couple deeply and tenderly in love and engagingly happy. He is definitely through with the ring—that appears certain. He told me he was grateful for what boxing had done in building up a strong body. He once had a semi-withered arm from neuritis. The same arm, incidentally, that won the championship.

He was equally grateful the ring had given him financial independence, but he has no further sentimental attachments for it. He dislikes crowds and the back-slapping hurrah. This was evidenced in the obscure table he sought in the tea room. He was totally oblivious everybody recognized him.

Fight fans will never understand Tunney. He still refers to Dempsey as Mr. Dempsey. This is no pose. He simply cannot speak the language of Fistiana and how he ever became mixed up in that rough and tumble world will always be a mystery to me, and I knew him long before he became champion.

He is extremely exercised over the invasion of his privacy by a sensational press, following his marriage. Especially is he bitter toward the tabloids. Mrs. Tunney revealed they intended to keep the engagement secret. A discharged servant, seeking vengeance, tipped off a newspaper. Then the bullabaloo. And self exilement.

Tunney was evasive about his future. It is said he wants to write and it is fairly certain he expects to spend the most of his time for the next few years abroad. I wish I might print Tunney's view of a certain gentleman high in politics in New York. It is exactly my own. And similes!

At tea—the boys at home should see me tea-ing in Paris—today one could not help noticing how few French women smoke in public. It seems confined solely to the cigarette in the circular bars. In a crowd of several hundred, nearly all the American and English women were inhaling smoke to their rouged knees, but not a native woman smoked.

PARIS is prize fight mad. There are several fights weekly at various Cirques, and all are packed. The rioting and flood of billingsgate characterizing Madison Sq. Garden affairs are missing. Gendarmes are everywhere, and rowdiness results in a Spanish walk to the exit—toot sweet. And the announcer, in full evening dress, was the image of Monsieur Joe Toplitzky in Los Angeles.

THE gravity of the famed gay Paree is symbolized to me in the deep-bosomed, brooding serenity of the Bois. Here Paris meditates. Now it is carpeted with falling leaves and the great and beautiful trees stand stark and naked, but always in its remotest depths will be found pensive strollers moving slowly, heads down and hands folded behind, lost in reverie. Save for the fall of mounted horse hoofs on the soft turf, there is an almost ominous silence. Sober-thinking Paris loves the Bois as loose-living New York loves Broadway. Starry-eyed lovers in close embrace amble along every path. It is doubtless one of the most appealing spots in all the world. Paris has the glitter of sham, but the Bois has the majestic dullness of reality.

BEEHIVES of activity hide behind the solemn gray of the cold stone buildings. Here characters a mysterious Paris, unknown to tourists. Today I taxied into a little court in rear of a warehouse building in rue Taitbout. There were a dozen or so cubicle shops, tiny bars and small pensions, mechanical music, dancing, singing and sidewalk chatter. Another world.

ONE of the sights these days is the electrical display on the department store Bon Marche—welcome to the nice free ad—designed by the wizard who prettied up Eiffel Tower. It shows cavorting clowns blowing bubbles, and as they float away other clowns rush up and burst them with pop guns. It is so attractive I am already three days behind in my wine bibbing.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE only "line" that holds any vital interest for a girl, these days, is the stag-line.

The older generation openly suspects that the younger generation is getting hardening of the heart; and the younger generation secretly believes that the older generation is getting softening of the brain.

"A popular fellow" is the one who is skilled in the art of telling a good story to the men—and a good lie to the women.

Just about the time a woman has learned to pack a man's suitcase so that he can find his shaving things in the dark and has learned which are his books in the closet, they discover that they are incompatible.

No matter how many leading ladies there may be in a man's life, he always likes to think that there are a few "extras" waiting around, too.

It is safe to make a man feel that he is appreciated, that he is admired, and even that he is loved—but never that he is indispensable.

A man may take a "sensible heel" to golf, hike or camp with him; but it is usually the "silly" kind that walks beside him to the altar.

Alas, the ashes of his dead loves strewn over his path never kept any man from skidding!

"Swank." When in Rome, doing as the Romans do—when in America, doing as the Americans do.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

No human being, however great or powerful, was ever so free as a fish. —Ruskin.

We live by admiration and love,
And even as these are well and truly fixed
In dignity of being we ascend.
—Wordsworth.

When a firm, decisive spirit is recognized it is curious to see how the space clears around a man and leaves him room and freedom.
—Foster.

Some people are so painfully good that they would rather be right than be good. —Bail.

A picture is a poem without words. —Horace.

There are whole worlds of fact waiting to be discovered by inference. —Wilson.

Search thy own heart; what paineth thee in others in thyself may be. —Whittier.

If what must be given is given willingly the kindness is doubled.
—Syrus.

Youth is a blunder; manhood is a struggle; old age regret. —Disraeli.

But science cannot answer the real questions such as these:

Whence did we come?

Why are we here?

What is our destiny when this short life ends and eternity opens on the other side of the grave?

Science goes out WHEN THE UNDERTAKER COMES IN.

People who look to religion for comfort, consolation and hope in the last hour, know that religion, respect and reverence for the Power that rules the universe of which our earth is a grain of sand, should be part of every man's life. ALL THROUGH LIFE.

It is a privilege to present such cartoons as Mr. Harding draws, dealing ably, and in kindly fashion, with thoughts and events of our day, cartoons that elevate the mind, make for good living and good thinking, and accord with the thoughts and feelings of intelligent American readers.
